HERNDON, NEGRO COMMUNIST, SET FREE BY SUPREME COURT, 5 TO 4

Justice Roberts, Speaking for Majority, Knocks Out Georgia Supreme Court's Interpretation of Anti-Inurrection Law of 1871.

TOO BROAD, VIOLATES 14TH AMENDMENT

No Reasonably Ascertainable Standard of Guilt Prescribed—Van Devanter, Sutherland, McReynolds and Butler Dissent.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The United States Supreme Court today invalidated an interpretation by the Georgia Supreme Court of an 1871 Georgia law prohibiting insurrection against the State.

In a 5-4 decision delivered by Justice Roberts, the Supreme Court set aside an 18-to-20-year penitentiary sentence imposed on Angelo Herndon, Cincinnati Negro Communist organizer.

Justice Roberts held that the statute, "as construed and applied" by the Georgia Supreme Court, "does not furnish a sufficiently ascertainable standard of guilt" and "violates the guarantees of liberty embodied in the fourteenth amendment."

Herndon's membership in the Communist party, Justice Roberts continued, and his solicitation of a few members "wholly fails to establish an attempt to incite others to insurrection."

"In these circumstances," the Justice said, "to make membership in the party and solicitation of members for that party a criminal offense, punishable by death, in the discretion of a jury, is an unwarranted invasion of the right of freedom of speech."

Justice Van Devanter delivered a dissent, in which Justices McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler joined.

Law amounts to "drag-net," Justice Roberts asserted, in concluding his opinion, that "the statute, as construed and applied, amounts merely to a dragnet which may ensnare anyone who agitates for a change of government if a person can be persuaded that he ought to have foreseen his words would have some effect on the future conduct of others."

No reasonably ascertainable standard of guilt is prescribed. So vague and indeterminate are the boundaries thus set to the freedom of speech and assembly that the law necessarily violates the guarantees of liberty embodied in the fourteenth amendment.

The Supreme Court reversed. The decision reversed a ruling by the Georgia Supreme Court upholding the statute which was passed during reconstruction days.

The Fulton County (Atlanta) Superior Court had held the statute was invalid because it was too vague and indefinite "to provide a sufficiently ascertainable standard of guilt."

Under the legislation "any attempt by persuasion or otherwise, to induce others to join in any combined resistance to the lawful authority of the State shall constitute an attempt to incite insurrection."

Another section provided the offenses should be punished by death. If the jury recommended mercy, confinement in the penitentiary for 18 to 20 years.

MID-AMERICA SECURITIES SOLD BY BALL FOUNDATION

Represent Rail and Realty Holdings of Late Van Sweringen Brothers.

CLEVELAND, April 26.—Sale of the railroad securities of Mid-America Corporation, top holding company of the rail and real estate empire of the late Van Sweringen brothers, was announced today by George A. Ball, trustee (Ind.) glass jar manufacturer. The buyers are Robert R. Young and Frank F. Kolbe of New York and Allen R. Kirby of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The securities are those of Allegheny Corporation, a Mid-America holding company. They were recently transferred to the George and Frances Ball Foundation, in whose name the sale was made.

Also announced was the sale of the extensive Cleveland real estate holdings built up by the late Q. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen. These properties were absorbed with the rail holdings by Ball and George A. Comblin, Cleveland shipping operator, when they came to the financial rescue of the Van Sweringens, before the death of the two bachelor brothers, and gained control of Mid-America, the holding company controlling more than 20,000 miles of railroad.

GOVERNMENT TRIES TO AVERT BUS STRIKE IN LONDON

Hopes at Least to Bring About Truce Until After Coronation Ceremonies.

LONDON, April 26.—The British Government moved today to avert a threatened strike by London's 40,000 bus drivers which might bring a major transportation tie-up while the city is jammed with coronation crowds.

Officials of the Ministry of Labor's Conciliation Department scheduled conferences with members of the transport and transport board and with representatives of the Transport and General Workers' Union. They hoped to settle the bus men's dispute to a truce until after King George is crowned May 12.

Some 2500 policemen have been instructed to operate more than 50 new bus routes. Presumably they would not strike.

The bus employees want a seven day and one-half-hour working day, compared with their present eight-hour day.

SNOWSTORMS IN FOUR STATES

Rescuers Work to Release 60 Marooned Motorists in Nebraska.

CHICAGO, April 26.—East South Dakota was struck by its worst spring snowstorm in years over the week-end. Aberdeen reported snow up to six inches. Observers described a duststorm in the vicinity of Pierre as rivaling those of 1933 and 1934.

Snow continued to fall heavily in Northeast Nebraska as plows worked their way toward Laurel, where 60 motorists have been snowbound since Saturday. A highway patrolman said roads remained open "not more than a hour" after being cleared. A snowstorm in the Red River Valley and Western Minnesota marooned 300 school children and their parents attending a music festival at Worthington, Minn., where the town was isolated and hotels were filled with motorists who abandoned their cars in eight-foot snow drifts.

MINE SHERIFF INVESTS $102,000 IN THREE YEARS

Harlan County, Ky., Officer Tells Senate Investigators of Realty and Securities Bought.

PAY $4460 A YEAR; 'LITTLE BIT ON SIDE'

'Terrorism' Witness Refuses Some Answers 'On Ground They May Involve Income Tax Suit.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Sheriff Theodore Middleton of Harlan County, Ky., told Senate investigators today that he and his wife had bought $102,728 worth of real estate and securities since he took office Jan. 1, 1934.

He testified before the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee that his salary as Sheriff had never amounted to more than $4460 annually, but that he "made a little bit on the side" through stock market trading and other business activities.

Refusal to Answer.

Middleton refused to answer further questions of Senate investigators about his business activities "on grounds that his answers might involve me in an income tax lawsuit."

Committee agents said that income tax officials were in the hearing room during Middleton's testimony.

Middleton, who once served five months in jail for selling liquor, disclosed that he had close business connections with several coal companies which employ his deputies as special guards. Coal land in which he has an $18,000 interest is leased to the Harlan-Wallins Coal Co., he said.

He testified he also owned about $1500 worth of stock in the same firm's commissary, which paid him 170 per cent dividends annually.

He told the committee his dairy "does a very nice business" in selling milk to the coal companies and their subsidiaries, but that he kept no record of its income.

On Constitutional Rights.

Middleton interrupted the questioning of Committee Chairman La Follette with the statement: "I'm going to stand on my constitutional rights and not answer any more questions because they might tend to incriminate me."

La Follette noted Middleton was "worth in the neighborhood of $10,000" when he took office, and then remarked:

"The committee is somewhat puzzled about how you found the office of sheriff so lucrative. Do you care to enlighten the committee?"

"I'm just as puzzled about that as the committee," the Sheriff replied, repeating his reliance on his constitutional immunities. He called two attorneys to "advise him about further testimony."

JURY COMPLETED TO TRY 9 IN PWA PLASTERING FRAUD

Five Contractors and Four Union Officers Go to Trial Before U. S. District Judge Moore.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Nine defendants in the PWA plastering fraud case were tried today by a jury of 12.

The Government has subpoenaed about 100 witnesses, said Assistant United States District Attorney Herbert H. Freer, who, with James E. Ruffin, Assistant Attorney General, will present the case against the defendants.

William H. Woodward, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, of counsel for the defense, informed the Court the trial would require at least two weeks.

The contractor defendants are Peter Anderson, Harry Niehaus, Frank B. Rowan, George F. Robertson Jr., and John Carroll. Union representatives named in the indictment are Harry Hagen, Vincent Lee, and William Anderson, brother of the contractor, Peter Anderson.

The offense with which they are charged is punishable by a prison term of two years and a fine up to $10,000.

Four of First 23 Excused.

During questioning of the first panel of 23 veniremen, four were excused, two because they were acquainted with defendants. A third said he might be prejudiced against union labor because his home had been picketed, and the fourth said he was prejudiced against "conspiracy" cases, because he had been an "unfortunate victim" of one.

This venireman added that he was "not very enthusiastic about the New Deal," and offered to give his reasons, but was asked not to.

In anticipation of a protracted trial two alternate jurors will be selected.

Woodward, in a statement to the panel as he began questioning veniremen, indicated one phase of the defense to be offered when he remarked that the acts alleged in the indictment had been done "under the National Industrial Recovery Act—the so-called N. I. R. A."

J. F. O. RELLER OUSTED AS ESTATE EXECUTOR

Removed by Probate Judge Arnold on Finding of Waste, Mismanagement.

J. F. Otto Reller, real estate dealer with an office at 3525 North Broadway, was removed today by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold as executor of the $5000 estate of Mrs. Sarah Jane Sauler.

Judge Arnold said he found that Reller had failed to discharge his official duty as executor, and had been guilty of waste and mismanagement of the assets of the estate.

He named Public Administrator Thomas R. Madden to succeed Reller as executor.

The chief beneficiary of Mrs. Sauler's will, Mrs. Catherine Bland, a niece of Dow, Ill., filed a motion several weeks ago asking for Reller's removal. She alleged that he had converted into his own property a $4000 deed of trust, belonging to the estate, without the court's consent, and had reinvested the proceeds in property in which he was directly or indirectly interested; also that he had failed to account for a $1500 deed of trust.

The two deeds comprised the assets of the estate as shown by Reller's inventory. Mrs. Sauler, who resided at 3638 North Eleventh street, died in July, 1934.

Reller recently stated to the court, through his attorney, Joseph T. Herberg, that the charge as to the $4000 deed of trust was not supported by facts, and was due to an error in bookkeeping. As to the $1500 deed, he stated that it was in reality Reller's property.

He said the deed had been the property of Mrs. Sauler's husband, the late E. B. Sauler, and had been turned over to Reller to "take care of" advances made by Reller on salary and other advances.

TWO IN CONGRESSIONAL PARTY INJURED IN STORM

Vice-President Garner and 100 From Washington in Furious Gale on Chesapeake Bay.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—A Congressional party returning from a tour of the Virginia Peninsula docked safely today after riding out one of the worst spring storms in the Chesapeake Bay. Some members of the party suffered minor injuries. Many were ill.

The ship District of Columbia, a 2100-ton boat, carrying Vice-President Garner and nearly 100 Senators and Representatives, ran into the full force of a gale almost immediately after leaving Old Point Comfort, Va. A 6-mile an hour wind drove waves over the prow of the vessel. One wave wrecked the interior of the dining saloon. About 35 persons were at dinner at the time. Many were thrown from their seats among spilled dishes and overturned tables.

Mrs. Andrew J. May, wife of the Representative from Kentucky suffered a sprained wrist and bruise. Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of the Senator from Minnesota, was bruised.

Roosevelt Cautions Government Employees Against Speculation

In Letter To Civil Service Head, President Says Activities Should Be Considered in Retention or Advancement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—President Roosevelt came out today against stock speculation by Government employees.

His view was stated in a letter made public at the White House, which the President sent April 23 to Harry H. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission.

The text of the letter follows: "I believe it to be a sound policy of the Government that no officer or employee, shall participate directly or indirectly, in any transaction concerning the purchase, or sale, of corporate stocks, or bonds, or of commodities for speculative purposes, as distinguished from bona fide investment purposes."

"Engagement in such speculative activities by any officer or employee, whether under the competitive civil service, or not, should be among the matters considered by the heads of departments and establishments and by the commission in passing upon questions concerning his qualifications for retention or advancement."

"I would appreciate it if you would take steps to make this known throughout the Government service."

Latest civil service figures show there are approximately 825,000 Government employees, of which 510,000 are under civil service.

HITLER CONGRATULATES FRANCO ON HIS CREATION OF ONE-PARTY SYSTEM

SALAMANCA, Spain, April 26.—GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO, virtual dictator of insurgent-held Spain, received a message from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today congratulating him on the creation of a one-party system similar to Germany's National Socialist (Nazi) party.

The Spanish General a few days ago decreed the incorporation of Carlists and Falangistas into a single official party and the abolition of all other parties. Telegrams of congratulation also included more than 100 messages from South America.

MADRID, April 26.—Insurgent artillery began a third week of almost incessant pounding of Madrid today with a heavy bombardment that caused the death of 15 persons and wounded 20 others.

It was one of the heaviest shelling of the 15-day attack, but today the gunners neglected the battered upper Gran Via, Madrid's main street, and laid down a heavy fire on Cibeles Square and the Paseo de la Castellana.

Traffic on Alcalá street was disrupted. Pedestrians fled for shelter. One shell fell near the International Banking Corporation office.

Sunday's Bombardment.

In yesterday's shelling of the city, four persons were killed and 12 wounded. The firing resumed after the capital had had one day of respite, the bombardment came from the direction of Carabanchel on the southwestern edge of the city. Shells fell in the Gran Via and in Castellana, famous Sunday promenade.

Rain early yesterday gave residents of the capital hope that the bombardment would not be resumed. A bright, sunny afternoon, however, brought the insurgent artillery into action about 4 o'clock. Government artillery replied in an effort to silence the insurgent guns. Demands for reprisals by bombardment of such insurgent centers as Valladolid were made by the Government press.

Rebel Deserters' Story.

Twelve deserters straggled into Madrid today from the beleaguered insurgent frontier of 3000 in suburban University City to tell a story of thirst, hunger and weakening morale.

The 12, who made their way to Government lines in Western Madrid in response to broadcast appeals by Government officers, said the garrison, cut off from help by Government artillery, mortars and machine guns, especially was in need of drinking water.

Gen. Jose Mija's recent offensive on the west side of Madrid bottled up the 3000 and cut them off from effective communication with another insurgent force in Casa de Campo Park, across the Manzanares River.

The University City insurgents have made repeated attempts to swim the river under fire, but without success. They have tried to draw water from the muddy stream, an equally dangerous proceeding.

Now, the deserters said, food, water and ammunition all were running low, and the insurgent bombardment of Madrid has failed to break the vigilance of the Government troops who keep the suburb bottled up.

East of Madrid, hard rains held up operations. Tanks mired in muddy roads on the Tietan front, about 60 miles from the Madrid front.

RIVERS IN FLOOD AT PITTSBURGH; HEAVY RAINFALL

Lower Sections of City Are Threatened With Third Inundation in Last Thirteen Months.

MANY PERSONS EVACUATE HOMES

Ohio Rising at Wheeling, W. Va., and Water Is Expected to Cover Wheeling Island.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 26.—The rain-swollen Allegheny and Monongahela rivers rose four feet over their 26-foot flood stage today and threatened river-front streets of Pittsburgh's business district with the third flood in 13 months. A crest of 36 feet was predicted by tomorrow noon at the confluence with the Ohio River.

Fed by a continuous rain that poured 1.87 inches of water over the 900-mile Ohio watershed during the last 24 hours, the rivers were rising at a rate of nine-tenths of a foot an hour.

Merchants and industrialists in low-lying areas moved their stocks to higher floors and threw up protective bulwarks.

The crest of the St. Patrick's day flood, which caused $200,000,000 damage here last year was 46 feet. Last January's highwater mark was 33 feet. While it would not threaten the main business streets, the predicted 36-foot stage would submerge residential districts of suburban Sharpsburg and the bottom lands of McKees Rocks.

Flood waters covered low-lying Johnstown streets, inundating houses and business buildings along the Conemaugh and Stony Creek rivers. The lower end of Main street was flooded to a depth of two feet. In three or four side streets the first floors of homes and business buildings were flooded.

The water forced the closing of the Lower Cambrian works of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Many residents moved to higher ground. Street car service stopped, and train service was hampered by washed out tracks. A number of merchants moved stock to upper floors.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported its main line to Pittsburgh and Chicago was blocked at Hyndman, Pa., by a washout, but that trains were being rerouted. The main line to St. Louis also was blocked. The Romney (W. Va.) branch and the Hagerstown (Md.) branch were out of service.

The Little Casselman River rose more than three feet to send two feet of water into the streets of Rockwood, a town of 1200, in Somerset County. Merchants removed some of their stocks, and a few families were forced from their homes. A number of villages in the county were isolated. The Lincoln highway was covered by more than a foot of water north of Ligonier. In the Uniontown area creek waters blocked traffic on several roads.

Firemen from Greensburg and Ligonier aided 150 families of Latrobe to evacuate their homes in the path of flood waters from Loyalhanna Creek.

At Wheeling, W. Va., the Ohio was expected to reach a 48-foot level Wednesday, 11 feet above flood stage. This stage would cover all of Wheeling Island, a residential community of 10,000 persons opposite Wheeling in the middle of the river, and much of South Wheeling.

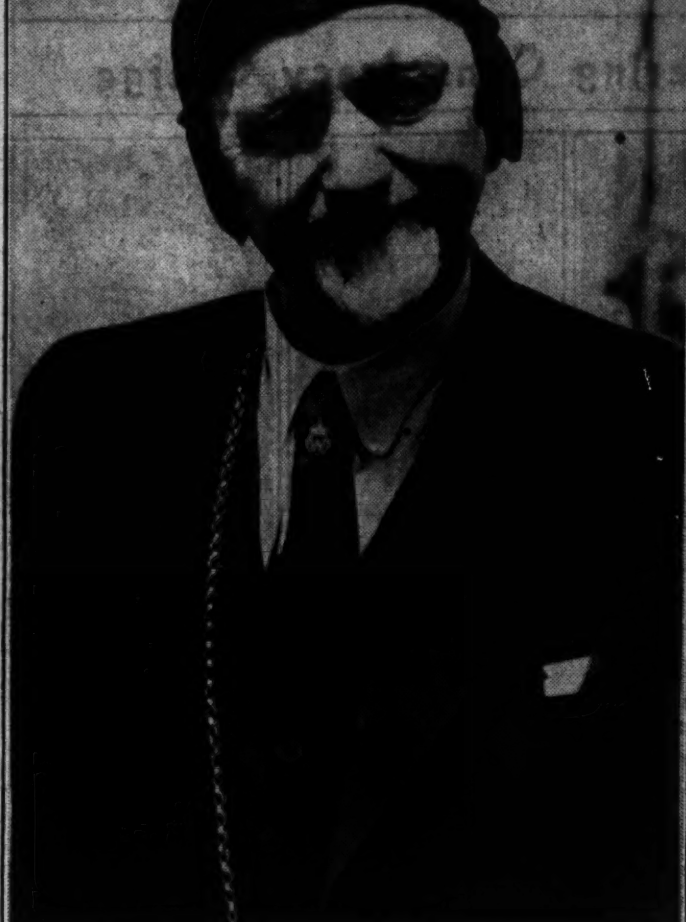

Business Stops at Cumberland, Md., Because of Flood.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 26.—Business was suspended and women in the business section were moved out in automobiles driven through nearly a foot of Potomac River flood water which covered downtown streets today. Later the water began to recede, falling six inches in an hour.

Merchants boarded up their store fronts and moved merchandise to upper floors. Baltimore street, the main business artery, was under water for three blocks and the Potomac River moved toward the doors of business houses.

DURANGO, EIBAR REPORTED TAKEN BY REBEL ARMY

By the Associated Press.
HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, April 26.—Reports which lacked official confirmation indicated today that the insurgent army had occupied Durango and Eibar, last-line cities before the besieged Basque capital of Bilbao.

Durango has been evacuated, in any event. Its defenders are retreating toward Bilbao, taking refugees, many of them women and children, with them along the 16 miles of road.

Columns of black smoke arose from Eibar, important arms manufacturing city and one of the strongest bulwarks of Leftist activity in Spain. Insurgents said fleeing Government militiamen had fired the city.

Occupation of Verris, vital communication center, cut off Durango from Eibar, which is a short distance to the east. The rebels also hold the heights of Zaldibar and Azconarria.

More than 8000 prisoners were taken by the insurgents the last two days, Gen. Emilio Mola reported. The Basque Catholic Deputy for San Sebastian, La Sarte, was listed among the prisoners.

Government sources denied loss of territory, but said their troops were under "strong enemy pressure and were forced to modify their lines."

"The Basques are in headlong flight," said an insurgent communiqué. Insurgents said only small bands of defenders remained in trenches in the Azconarria Hills around Eibar and Ernea.

Roads leading into Bilbao were jammed with refugees, and it was estimated that 60,000 persons would be added quickly to the city's population already swollen to 400,000. Insurgents said their armies refrained from bombing the highways because of the refugees.

Insurgent armies bombed Bilbao twice yesterday, however, causing widespread destruction in the city. Forty-seven planes, including 20 tri-motored Junker (German) planes, participated in the attacks.

One raid was just before noon, the other just after, each lasting half an hour.

MADRID CRUISER ROUTES TWO REBEL SHIPS IN FIGHT

Spanish Government Report Describes Engagement Near Cartagena in the Mediterranean.

By the Associated Press.
VALENCIA, Spain, April 26.—Spain's government navy ministry announced today the Government fleet had "gone into major action to rout insurgent warships in the Mediterranean and charged the German cruiser Leipzig was acting as a scout for the insurgents."

The announcement described a fight between the insurgent cruisers Canarias and Baleares and the Government cruiser Sanchez Barcataltegui while the latter was returning to its Cartagena base. The insurgent vessels, the ministry said, opened fire from 12,000 yards. The Sanchez Barcataltegui routed them with 180 shots in 30 minutes.

A report from Commander Miguel Buiza of the Government fleet said the Leipzig, one of the German warships assigned to the international neutrality patrol of Spain, was near the scene of operations and signaled to the insurgents the movements of Government ships.

Other Ships to Scene.
The main part of the Spanish Government fleet, which had put into Cartagena, set out at top speed for the scene of the fight after receiving the Sanchez Barcataltegui's signals.

It reached the scene of the action, 30 miles south of Cartagena, and searched for three hours, for the insurgent fleet. But no trace of them was found.

The commander of the Sanchez Barcataltegui, said Commander Buiza's report, "was able to observe during the battle that the Leipzig communicated with the enemy by means of a searchlight."

"When the fleet went out from Cartagena in pursuit of the enemy, the Leipzig's radio constantly communicated in code with some near-by ship, which suggests that the Leipzig was informing the enemy of the movements of our ships."

Previous Maneuvers.
The Government fleet's foray really began last Friday night when the Government cruisers Libertad, Mendez Nuñez and five destroyers left Cartagena. Later they were joined by the Battleship Jaime I, out of Almeria.

"When the fleet left Cartagena," the Government said, "it had to get out of the way of the Leipzig, which has been constantly off port, acting as a scout for the enemy."

Proceeding to the Malaga-Motril area, the Government ships bombarded port sugar factories and petroleum tanks and other insurgent industrial objectives. Heavy damage resulted, it was announced. Insurgent shore batteries replied with little effect.

Off Malaga, an insurgent airplane squadron attacked the fleet, but one plane was shot down. Two torpedo boats, putting out from Malaga just as the Government fleet was departing, fired torpedoes wildly from a distance of more than 9000 yards, but retreated under fire from the Government destroyers.

The attack on the Sanchez Barcataltegui occurred when it was trailing the rest of the fleet back to Cartagena yesterday.

Loyal Warship Reported Grounded.

By the Associated Press.

The raid took place Saturday. Three buildings were damaged.

Uprising Against Rebels Reported in Granada Province.
VALENCIA, Spain, April 26.—An uprising against the insurgent command in Granada Province was reported in Spanish Government circles yesterday.

Reliable reports said a fleet of planes took off from Granada airport and bombed the city's suburbs. The use of airplanes was considered an indication of military insurrection, since armed forces at Granada were thought to be sufficient to cope with civil disturbances.

FRANCO'S MEN DON U. S. ARMY COATS SEIZED ON SHIP

Spanish Insurgents Wearing New Uniforms Found on Boat Taken Near Bilbao.

By the Associated Press.
EL GUEBA, Northern Spain, April 26.—Brand-new United States Army overcoats protected Gen. Francisco Franco's Spanish insurgent troops today from the chill winds that blew along trenches they had just won atop Mount Ineborta.

The coats, bearing double rows of metal buttons stamped with the United States seal, were among 20,000 uniforms found on a ship the insurgents seized in the Bay of Biscay off Bilbao.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Army officers said today that American-made army overcoats being used by insurgent troops in Spain probably represent part of the huge surplus of uniforms and stores left over from the World War. Much of this material, pronounced unusable for use by American troops, was sold to dealers in such supplies.

doctrine or action implying such forcible subversion.

"There is evidence tending to prove that the appellant held meetings for the purpose of recruiting members of the Communist party and solicited contributions for the support of that party and there is proof of the doctrines which that party espouses."

"Appellant's intent to incite insurrection, if it is to be found, must rest upon his procuring members for the Communist party and his possession of that party's literature when he was arrested."

Justice Roberts asserted that Herndon "had a constitutional right to address meetings and organize parties unless in so doing he violated some prohibition of a valid statute."

Justice Van Devanter's dissent. In his dissenting opinion, Justice Van Devanter said:

"I am of the opinion that the Georgia statute, as construed and applied by the Supreme Court of the State in Herndon's case, prescribes a reasonably definite and ascertainable standard by which to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused, and does not encroach on his right of freedom of speech or of assembly."

He was convicted in 1932, but has been at liberty under $7000 bail provided by the International Labor Defense.

Once before he appealed to the Supreme Court, but it held it had no jurisdiction at that time.

Angelo Herndon's Career: He Has Spoken in St. Louis.
Herndon, who has spoken in St. Louis, was born 24 years ago in a Wyoming mining town. As he grew up he suffered bitter personal experience which left him "bewildered, grief-stricken and hopeless," as mentioned in his recent autobiography "Let Me Live."

An encounter with Communist organizers led him into the movement, convinced him it was the only practical force with which to fight "the lynching of Negroes and Jim Crowism."

He joined the Communist Party in Atlanta during the worst of the depression period, became active in the work of the Unemployment Councils which held relief demonstrations all over the country, attended a Chicago convention of the councils at the age of 17.

Origin of His Case in 1932.
His widely known case had its inception in the summer of 1932 when Atlanta authorities announced that 23,000 families were to be dropped from relief rolls. The Unemployment Council, of which Herndon was a leader, distributed 10,000 leaflets throughout the city calling for a demonstration at the

FIVE MORE SUPPLY SHIPS RUN INSURGENT BLOCKADE

Three British Freighters Take Aid to Bilbao—Two Others Arrive at Santander.

By the Associated Press.
HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, April 26.—The seventh British freighter to run the attempted insurgent blockade at sea slipped into Bilbao Harbor today with a cargo of food.

The ship was the Sheaf Garth. It signaled to a British destroyer at the three-mile limit, whereupon the insurgent cruiser Espana steamed away without attempting to attack. The Bilbao government announced two British ships, the Thurston and the Steaso, reached the city yesterday while two others, the Jenny and the Oak Grove, reached Santander to relieve food shortages in the two Biscayan cities.

Besieged Bilbao's situation was eased further with the arrival of the Thurston, with a cargo of food. The freighter's captain said he was ordered to halt and when he refused the submarine launched a torpedo, which missed. He said he thought the submarine was German.

The British freighter Cyclops, arriving at Valencia, reported it had been fired on by a submarine. The freighter's captain said he was ordered to halt and when he refused the submarine launched a torpedo, which missed. He said he thought the submarine was German.

Atlanta courthouse.
About 1000 men, women and children stormed the courthouse square, thronged into the building. It was a demonstration similar to some held at the St. Louis City Hall several years ago. Results were immediate. The city authorities acted. Additional relief money was appropriated. The order to drop the 23,000 families was rescinded. But police ferreted out the ringleaders. They raided Herndon's room, seized some of his pamphlets. Twenty-four hours after the courthouse demonstration he was in jail, arrested on the charge of attempting to overthrow the sovereignty of the State of Georgia.

Evidence at his trial, conducted with an all-white jury, was based largely on the presentation of such confiscated material as The Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, and pamphlets dealing with "The Communist Position on the Negro" and "Communism and Christianity."

State Appealed to Prejudice.
The State plainly appealed to sectional, racial and political prejudice. The prosecution defined the issue as Georgia versus Communism. The jury was told that Herndon was organizing an army "to march into the State to murder, kill and assassinate all white people, take away their property and set up a Nigger kingdom."

The prosecution demanded the death penalty. Herndon answered by saying to the jury, "do with me as you will, there are thousands more to take my place."

Negro lawyers for the defense asserted that the State produced no evidence except literature which could be found in the public libraries of Atlanta. They accused the prosecution of arousing racial prejudice to convict Herndon. His only "crime," they contended, was in asking the relief authorities to furnish bread to starving people, both white and black.

Rogers insisted, however, that "it is literally true that there are no plans for the wedding." He said Mrs. Simpson's final divorce decree was expected no sooner than May 5. It has been reported the Duke and Mrs. Simpson will be married at the chateau chapel in June.

NEW COAL ACT SIGNED COMMISSION NAMED

C. F. Hosford Jr., Nominated for Chairman; W. H. Maloney, Missouri, a Member.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 26.—President Roosevelt signed the National Bituminous Coal Commission bill today, marking a new Federal attempt to stabilize the soft coal industry, this time through price-fixing alone.

The new law, which becomes effective June 1 for a four-year period, is a substitute for the original Guffey Coal Act, invalidated by the Supreme Court last year.

The President nominated for Commission which the act creates: C. F. Hosford Jr., of Pennsylvania; C. E. Smith of West Virginia; Percy Tietlow of Ohio; John Lewis of Iowa; Thomas S. Hayden of Kentucky; Pless E. Grayson of Indiana; and Walter H. Maloney of Missouri. John Carson of Michigan, who was secretary to the Senator Couzens of that state, was nominated to be consumers' counsel of the Commission.

Hosford, Smith, Tietlow and Maloney were members of the original Bituminous Coal Commission which administered the original Bituminous Coal Act. George E. Acret of California, was the fifth member of that group.

Stripped of the labor provision to which the court objected, the new law empowers an enlarged National Bituminous Coal Commission to prescribe minimum prices for coal, promulgate a code of trade practices for producers and fine violators 19½ per cent of the sale price of their coal at the mine. The Commission also may fix maximum prices to protect consumers from so-called "runaway" markets.

The original draft of the law was written by counsel for the United Mine Workers and, although enacted, it contains no labor provisions beyond a declaration of policy in favor of collective bargaining, the union still is strongly in favor of the legislation.

Spokesmen for the miners extend their union is strong enough to enforce their wage demands as long as the producers are prevented by law from indulging in "price-cutting."

In addition to the revised law provisions, the new law differs in several respects from the original act. It provides for a minimum price of five $10,000-a-year contracts of the Commission and places the price-fixing power directly in the Commission's hands.

Twenty-three district pricing boards will propose minimum prices where formerly they established them subject to review by the Commission.

KRESGE, M'CRORY ASK JUDGE MOORE TO BAR PICKETING

Seek Order After Unions Fail to Get Prohibition Writ on Jurisdictional Ground.

COURT BUSY, SO HAILING IS DEFERRED

Appellate Tribunal, in Denying Unions' Plea, Reserves to Them the Right to Appeal Decisions.

The Kresge Co. and the McCrory stores today applied to United States District Judge George H.
Moore for a temporary restraining order against the clerks, waitresses and cooks' unions, to stop picketing, which was resumed this morning in front of the Kresge store at 522 Washington avenue and the McCrory store, 426 North Sixth street.

Judge Moore, who was occupied with a trial of plastering contractors, took the application for a temporary order under advisement, without setting a time for passing on it.

Wayne Ely, counsel for the two unions, said the request for immediate action was made because of the delay last week, when the unions applied to the United States Court of Appeals for a writ of prohibition to keep Judge Moore from assuming jurisdiction. The case then before Judge Moore was the suit of the stores for a preliminary injunction against the unions.
The Court of Appeals refused to issue a writ of prohibition, and this time the case back to Judge Moore.

But for the delay caused by the appeal Court proceeding, Ely said, testimony might have been completed by this time in the stores company's suit for a preliminary injunction. After Judge Moore decided last Tuesday that he had jurisdiction, and the unions announced their purpose to go to the Court of Appeals, picketing was resumed after a week's activity.

Picketing was resumed at 9:10
this morning, 10 minutes after the stores opened. The pickets, most of them women, carried umbrellas. Vernon Housewright of St. Louis Local 655, who is one of the individual defendants in the injunction suit, was in charge.

The unions and their representatives have been ordered by Judge Moore to show cause, no later than Friday, why the preliminary injunction sought by Kresge's should not be issued. It seemed likely today that this order would be extended to a later date.

Appeal Later Possible.
Judge John B. Sanborn announced the decision of the Court of Appeals in St. Paul yesterday.

Arguments were made there Saturday before Judge Sanborn, Wilbur Booth and A. K. Gardner.
Judge Sanborn said the issue presented by the Kresge company's injunction petition, and the unions' attack on Judge Moore's jurisdiction, was held to be not one for the appellate Court. He said the proper course would be for the unions to appeal from such decisions as Judge Moore might make.

Before the case was laid over last Tuesday, Judge Moore heard testimony of Joseph D. Nolan, manager of the Kresge store, and of a woman clerk, in support of the company for a preliminary injunction.

Previous Testimony.
Nolan, in his testimony a week ago, said one of the 116 store employees was a member of any of the unions picketing the store, that the employees had a union, formed by on April 15, two days after the picketing began, but without suggestion or assistance from him.

The clerk testified that the employee organization was in the earliest stages, and that she suspected one of its bargaining committees.
Union counsel have sought to show that the case was one for the National Labor Relations Board.
It has been denied by the counsel for the store on the ground that no dispute existed between the company and its employees, and no one had been called. The union representatives said they were picketing to enforce recognition of the unions as bargaining agents for the employees.

NEWSPAPER GUILD STRIKE AT LONG ISLAND PRESS ENDS

Increased Pay, Dismissal Schedule and "Preferential Shop" Settlement Features.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 26.—With Mayor F. H. LaGuardia as arbitrator, a strike of the New York Newspaper Guild against the Long Island Press was settled late today, the Mayor announced, both sides agreeing to sign a contract with these features:

Reinstatement of 63 strikers, immediate dismissal of all strikers replacements, increased wages in all categories, severance pay rising to 14 weeks pay for dismissal after 10 years' service, and a "preferential shop."

The Guild agreed to one clause which involved what William F.
Hofmann, publisher of the newspaper, termed "the right to manage his paper." The clause said in part: "Nothing in this agreement shall be construed to impair or invade the right of the Press to determine in good faith the journalistic competency of employees in the

BOMB SET OFF AT RESTAURANT JARS 150 DINERS

Dynamite Explosion on Window Sill Damages Little Bevo, Picketed for Nearly Four Years.

A dynamite bomb exploded on a basement window sill of the Little Bevo Restaurant, 4781 Morganford road, shortly before 8 o'clock last night when the place was filled with about 150 diners.

The loud explosion caused momentary confusion, but damage was slight. The police estimate was about $300. The only injury was a cut finger suffered by Miss Margie Heuman, 4616 Loughborough avenue, who was struck by a fragment of glass in the kitchen, where she was visiting her sister, a waitress.

Elmer Telthorst, manager of the restaurant, told police he could not account for the bombing. He said he had received no threats.

The restaurant has been picketed for nearly four years by the Waitresses' Local Union No. 249, but Telthorst said he had not received any communication from the union for three years and the picketing had been peaceful and orderly. The picketing began June 9, 1933, when Telthorst refused to deal with the union. In recent months one picket has been on duty during three hours in the evening.

The bomb was placed beneath the kitchen, on the sill of a window on the north side, near the back of the two-story brick building. A passageway from the alley, which runs between the restaurant and a frame garage, leads to the window where the bomb was placed.

The explosion chipped the concrete window sill, which forms part of the building foundation, twisted an iron beam supporting the kitchen floor and tore the side of the garage loose.
Six basement windows, 17 small panes in the kitchen, four large windows in the kitchen and two windows in washrooms in the restaurant were shattered. The garage windows and two in the building at 4745 Morganford were broken also.

'BAT-WING' PARACHUTE JUMPER DIES IN FALL

Clem Sohn, U. S. 'Birdman', Loses Life in France When Two 'Chutes Fall.

By the Associated Press.
VINCENTNES, France, April 26.—
Clem Sohn, 26-year-old American
'Birdman', plunged to his death here yesterday when two para-chutes failed to open during an exhibition jump.

The "birdman," so-called because of the wings he wore to direct his fall through space, plunged into the center of the airfield before a crowd of 30,000 at an aviation program. Doctors said death was instantaneous.

Sohn made his fatal leap from an airplane at an altitude of 8000 feet. He first appeared as a white speck in the sky, dropping freely, and then could be seen manipulating his bat-like wings as his figure loomed larger.

Parachute Falls to Open.
At the 1000-foot level the parachute he carried strapped to his back streamed from its pack. It stretched above him like an exclamation point and failed to open.
Sohn tugged at the auxiliary parachute strapped to his chest. The white silk streamed forth but failed to open. He plunged to the ground.

Several thousand spectators rushed from the stands and police were required to clear a path for doctors.

The body of Sohn was taken to a hospital and the Air Ministry appointed a committee to examine the parachutes today to determine the cause of the accident.

Air Show Performer.
Sohn was a traveling parachute jumper for eight years. He had been an attraction at aviation carnivals and air races in the United States and foreign countries.

He invented a "bat-wing" device which permitted him to simulate flight after jumping from an airplane. Often he glided for several minutes before opening his para-chutes and floating to earth. The wings formed a web between his arms and body and between his legs.

He was injured in England last June when a parachute opened late. He narrowly escaped death several times in the United States when his two parachutes, standard equipment for exhibition jumping, were slow to open. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Sohn, live in Lansing, Mich.

Sohn Made 'Bat-Wing' Jump Two Years Ago at Lambert Field.
Sohn made a parachute jump at Lambert-St. Louis Field two years ago, spiraling down on his "bat-wings" for more than a mile from an altitude of 9000 feet before opening his parachute.

Quintuplet Report Unconfirmed.
PEIPING, China, April 26.—A report that quintuplet sons had been born to a peasant woman at Luanhsien, 100 miles northeast of Tientsin, created a sensation today, but 24 hours of investigation failed to confirm the story. The report, carried by an obscure Chinese news agency, said all were living.

NOTE LEFT BY ACTRESS WHO ENDED HER LIFE

Police Indicate Joker Wrote
Invitations That Drew Crowd to Building.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 26.—A note left for her husband apparently held today the motive of the suicide of Mrs. James Mont, former actress, as guests were arriving for a big cocktail party at the address where she had an apartment Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Mont was known on the stage as Helen Kim.

Authorities declined to disclose the note's contents, beyond saying it was "very personal." One official who read it said "it is a suicide note," but added that he read it hurriedly and though he had "not attached any particular importance to it, there are some things in it which must remain undisclosed."

Mont, Turkish-born interior decorator, yesterday left the home in which the pair had spent the 23 days of their married life. He left no word as to his destination, or when he would return. Employees guarded entrances to the apartment.

Chain Letter Hoax.
Mont was in his studio a few blocks away when his wife killed herself, and police quoted him as saying they had quarreled earlier in the day.

The whereabouts of the body, signed over to the care of the husband by the medical examiner, was also kept secret.

The party guests assembled in the lobby as the result of a chain letter hoax perpetrated by practical jokers, police indicated. The invitations were sent out merely naming the Park avenue address, and not Mrs. Mont's apartment, and no "guests" were found who knew Mrs. Mont.

The actress was unaware of the crowd in the lobby, police said, and it was only coincidence she took her life as they gathered, wondering when the festivities would begin.

Anonymous Invitations.
"You are cordially invited to a mystery cocktail party," the anonymous invitations read. "It will be the most unusual and amusing one ever held in New York."

The Daily News says a man whose name was withheld told police he and three others sent the invitations as a joke to hundreds of people, including the socially prominent Mrs. S. Stanwood Mencken, Woolworth Donahue, Prince Serge Obolensky and Elsa Maxwell.

The guests arrived to find the door locked and gas seeping through. When the room was entered with a pass key, Mrs. Mont lay unconscious on the kitchen floor, clad in a slip, silk stockings and shoes. She had inhaled the gas through a tube at the kitchen stove.

Starred in Communist Play.
Mrs. Mont received praise from critics six years ago as the star of "Roar China," a Communist propaganda play. She was married to Randolph J. Thomson, English playwright. A few minutes after the marriage was annulled March 28, she was married to Mont, 33.

While Mrs. Mont was a student at the University of Southern California, Robert Pew, 35, poet, drank a glass of poison and died at her feet.

Pew had followed Miss Kim, then 22, from the Orient to Los Angeles.
He had traveled in almost every country on the globe after finishing his studies in the University of Michigan. In Honolulu he met Miss Kim, who had studied at the University of California in Berkeley. They became fast friends.

The girl's apartment in Los Angeles was the setting for Pew's suicide, which came in a fit of despondency, induced, she said, by his love for his divorced wife and their two children. She said Pew drank heavily and was "tired and disgusted with life."

UNIONS SEEK CHANGE IN JOB INSURANCE BILL

Central Trades Body to Urge Legislature to Adopt Pooled Fund System.

Organized labor influence will be exerted in an effort to amend the State unemployment compensation bill to provide for a pooled fund system, instead of the employers' separate reserve fund plan, under the social security program.

Delegates to the Central Trades & Labor Union meeting yesterday, were urged to communicate a preference for the pooled fund plan to St. Louis members of the State Senate, which is scheduled to perfect the bill tomorrow. The bill originally proposed a pooling of funds for unemployment compensation, but was changed in committee to the individual reserve plan.

Frank Murphy, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, declared it was generally known in Jefferson City that "big interests" had been lobbying for the defeat of the pooled fund plan. The opposition came from the Associated Industries and public utilities, Murphy asserted, adding that large sums of money had been spent by lobbyists representing employers. Labor would have to exert influence through "weight of numbers," Murphy said, being unable to wage a financial campaign. He charged that labor "was sold down the river" by a group of Senators, who forced substitution of the reserve fund plan in committee.

Prof. Ralph Fuchs of Washington University asserted the purposes of the legislation would be defeated if the bill passed as it now stands. Employees engaged in seasonal occupations would receive little benefit under the employers' separate reserve, Prof. Fuchs said.

William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades, said 36 states had adopted the pooled fund system and only three had the separate reserve fund plan.

Joseph P. Clark, president of Central Trades, was appointed to represent the organization on the Committee to Regulate Charitable Solicitation, formed recently by ordinance.

GENERAL MOTORS TO ERECT DIESEL ENGINE FACTORY

Single Cylinder Motors to Be Made at Detroit for Stationary Use.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, April 26.—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, announced today that the corporation soon will begin the manufacture of Diesel engines.

He said that a 75-acre tract of land had been purchased near the city limits for the erection of a plant and that an engineering laboratory would be the first building to be constructed.

Sloan said a new division of the corporation, known as the Diesel engine division, had been formed, and that the manufacture of Diesel engines would be confined to single cylinder units of from 20 to 180 horsepower for stationary use.

CANNERY STRIKERS CHARTERED BY A. F. L.

Part of Agricultural Workers' Union at California Riot Scene Taken In.

By the Associated Press.
SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 26.—Gov. Frank Merriam will meet today with representatives of striking cannery workers and cannery men in an effort to settle the strike at Stockton where 53 persons were injured in rioting Friday.

The Governor said a committee of strikers, headed by Dudley Sargent, president of the newly-formed Cannery Workers' Union, chartered by the American Federation of Labor, and the cannery men, led by J. Paul St. Sure, would confer with him.

Both sides held discussions yesterday, the cannery men in Oakland and the strikers in Stockton, over a tentative proposal that was drafted here Friday night.

The latter group, the Governor said, had decided that the Agricultural Workers' Union should be split, and a charter of the A. F. of L. was issued to a section as the Cannery Workers' Union. Sargent, according to Edward Vandeleur, executive secretary of the Federation, was named president of the group.

The strike, involving 1300 employees in four Stockton canneries, was called 10 days ago by the Agricultural Workers' Union, which asked for higher wages, shorter hours and recognition.

Previous peace conferences collapsed on the recognition demand. Cannery men have repeatedly raised the question of who should speak for this area's workers, many of whom are not associated with the Agricultural Workers' Union, which included field and cannery workers. Vandeleur said members of the executive board of the State Federation would serve as officers of the new union temporarily. This thrust, said those leaders already involved in Friday's rioting.

"We have the practical assurance of the spokesman of the employers, J. Paul St. Sure, that they will negotiate with the executive council of the State Federation of Labor for the cannery workers," said Vandeleur.

St. Sure, who is attorney for California Processors and Growers, Inc., had questioned the right of the Agricultural Workers' Union to represent the employees of the four Stockton canneries closed by the strike.

The move to separate the agricultural and cannery workers followed a statement by plant operators that they would be more favorable to negotiations with cannery workers alone. It was said the operators feared complications if they made an agreement with agricultural workers who might object to handling produce harvested by non-union field help.

SHOE STRIKERS WIN IN COMMISSARY RULING

Court Permits CIO to Keep Open Food and Relief Station in Maine.

By the Associated Press.
LEWISTON, Me., April 26.—Supreme Court Justice Harry Manser announced today the court would permit the Committee for Industrial Organization's commissary and relief station to continue aid to workers in Lewiston and Auburn where 19 factories have been affected by a strike. Manufacturers had asked that an injunction, barring strike activities be applied to the commissary. The court is of the opinion that for the time being the injunction decree should continue to be interpreted as temporarily agreed upon by the counsel for both sides with the court, and that the burden of supporting needy persons and their families connected with the strike should fall where it belongs, upon the organization which is responsible for the strike. Justice Manser ruled.

The commissary supplies about 2000 daily with food. Only the "point of a bayonet" would close the relief commissary, Mrs. Mary Donovan Haggood, wife of Powers Haggood, New England secretary of the Committee for Industrial Organization, told a mass meeting of 3000 shoe strikers and sympathizers in the City Hall here yesterday.

"If they close it, our blood will be on their heads," she said. "I'm ready to stand with anyone here and fight those fellows at the door if they attempt to make us stop feeding our people." By meeting the strikers defied the injunction outlawing their 31-day-old strike. Justice Manser had said continuance of such meetings this week-end would affect his decision on whether to bar the commissary. U. S. Mediator in Action.

Meanwhile, Thomas J. Williams, United States Department of Labor Conciliator, working independently of Dr. A. Howard Myers, New England Labor Relations Board chief, said manufacturers had agreed to meet CIO representatives later today for a "preliminary" conference.

Haggood said the shoe workers would "consider any offer of settlement as a basis for immediate discussion."

C. V. Watson, who said he spoke for a majority of his fellow industrialists, previously had expressed opinion there was "no hope for settlement with the CIO in the picture. One manufacturer, who declined to permit use of his name, expressed belief the "backbone of the strike was broken," and that today's reopening of factories would see additional workers returning to their benches.

CIO MOVE TO UNIONIZE MAINE'S LARGEST SHIPYARD

Prospective America's Cup Contender Among Five Vessels Under Construction at Bath.

By the Associated Press.
BATH, Me., April 26.—A Committee for Industrial Organization campaign to unionize the Bath Iron Works, Inc., Maine's largest shipyard, was under way today in this Kennebec River city, famous for its ships since square-rigger days. The Industrial Union of Marine and Shipyard Workers, a CIO affiliate, announced a "concerted move" to organize workers of the company, which employs about 1600.

Harold Vanderbilt's Ranger, prospective America's cup contender, is one of five vessels under construction at the plant.

President William S. Newell of the Bath Iron Works said the announcement was "no news" and that he wasn't "getting excited about it." He said his company was competing with larger shipyards on an even basis so far as wages were concerned.

CENTURY CO. GROUPS SEEK PLANT ELECTION

Two Petitions Sent NLRB
From Plant Where CIO Strike Is in Progress.

Two groups of Century Electric Co. employees today petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for a plant election to determine employee representation.

One petition, signed by Henry A. Weber and William Looney, officers of the Century Electric Employees' Works Council, stated that the organization represented all of the 1450 production and maintenance workers, although admitting that some workers had joined the United Electrical and Radio Workers Local 1108, a CIO union, now conducting a strike at the company's two plants, 1806 and 1817 Pine street.

The other petition, signed by seven employees in the tool and die makers' division of the plant, did not state that the petitioners were members of the Works Council, but stated that the Electrical and Radio Workers' Union claimed to represent some of the employees.

The Labor Board will investigate the petitions and other factors before ordering an election. Any employee, or organization representing employees may petition the Labor Board for a plant election to determine majority representation among employees.

A strike was declared at the Century Co. April 12 by the Electrical and Radio Workers' Union, which now claims to represent a majority of the employees. The company has been operating on a curtailed basis under protection of an injunction granted by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood.

Brief Meeting Held on Emerson Strike.

Negotiations toward settlement of the 50-day strike of 2000 employees of the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. were resumed today by a CIO union committee and the management at the company offices, 1224 Washington avenue. Meanwhile 200 stay-in strikers remained in possession of the firm's motor plant, 2018 Washington avenue, in the second longest stay-in demonstration of record in the United States.

The meeting, shortly before noon, was brief, the union representatives restating the strikers' demands for a 10-cent hourly wage increase and a 50-cent hourly minimum.

The management, through John Dwy, superintendent, announced that accounts were being checked to determine whether the company could increase wages. A union subcommittee, headed by William Sentner, CIO organizer, will meet company officers again tomorrow. Last Thursday the strikers voted not to return to work until given a definite wage agreement. A proposed settlement presented at that time granted recognition of the union as sole bargaining agency, and gave assurance that all demands would be negotiated.

Organization of employees of St. Louis electrical manufacturing firms has been conducted by the CIO-affiliated United Electrical & Radio Workers' Union of America, which is in charge of the strikes at the Emerson Co. and at the Century Electric Co. The union will begin a series of five 15-minute radio broadcasts at 9:15 o'clock tonight over Station WTMV. The Emerson and Century strikes and the organization drive at the Wagner Electric Corporation will be discussed.

Conferences by Three Other Firms and CIO Set for Today.

CIO negotiators had conferences scheduled for today with three firms at which employees have been organized under the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The firms are: Meeker Bros. Iron Co., 424 South Seventh street, where 50 of the 150 shop workers conducted a 24-day stay-in strike until last Friday; the Curtis Manufacturing Co., 1905 Kielen avenue, Wellston, cited by the National Labor Relations Board on charges of unfair labor practices, and the Heine Boiler Co., 5319 Shreve avenue.

At 8 o'clock tonight at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets, striking employees of the St. Louis Car Co. will vote on a second company proposal to end the strike called March 30. Edwin B. Meissner, company president, was granted permission by the strikers, organized under the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, to address the meeting for the purpose of explaining details of his proposal. The strikers rejected a previous company offer on the ground the wage increase offered was insufficient.

Striker, Knocked Down by Beer Bottle Thrown from Auto.
Albert Johnson, 2816 North Spring avenue, a Howards Cleaners striker, was knocked down by a beer bottle thrown from an automobile while he was walking in Dodier street, near Grand boulevard, with a young woman at 2:30 a. m. yesterday. Johnson, treated at City Hospital for a scalp wound, said he could not identify the three men in the automobile, which sped away.

A. F. L. Garment Union Organizes Employees of Two Concerns.

100 PAY 50 CENTS EACH TO SEE MRS. SIMPSON'S U. S. HOME

Baltimore Residence Opened to Public; Simpsoniana on Exhibit.

BALTIMORE, April 26.—More than 100 persons paid 50 cents each yesterday to inspect a kitchen stove once used to cook meals for Mrs. Wallis Simpson and to view other articles in an old house at 212 East Biddle street where the fiancée of former King Edward of England lived in her youth.

Only a few articles directly connected with Mrs. Simpson remain in the house. The stove is one. Another is a dining room stove and a third is a picture of Mrs. Simpson's mother which hangs in the third floor front room. This room is said to have been Mrs. Simpson's bedroom. Efforts were made to rehabilitate the house as it was when occupied by the woman whom Edward, now Duke of Windsor, will make his duchess. The second floor has been converted into a museum and only the front third story room is open to the public.

UNION LEADERS OPEN HARLAN CAMPAIGN

Purpose Is to Organize Mines in Kentucky County in 60 Days.

By the Associated Press.
EVARTS, Ky., April 26.—Heralding the Wagner Labor Relations Act as the "savior of democracy in Harlan County," the United Mine Workers of America opened their campaign here yesterday to unionize Harlan County coal mines within the next 60 days.

International representatives of the union, leading 20 organizers, announced they had met with "unexpected success" and had already signed about 3000 miners.

George J. Tittler of Chattanooga, Tenn., international representative, declared:

"Our goal is 16,000 members in all the mines of Harlan County within the next 60 days. By the end of this week we expect to have local unions organized in eight mines."

The opening rally was held in a field near the scene of a clash between miners and officers in May, 1931, in which four men were killed and for which two former union officers are serving life sentences.

Explains Wagner Act.
Organizers explained the Wagner Act and its effect on miners, and exhorted miners to effect "one hundred per cent unionization" of Harlan County, heretofore non-union.

Matt Bunch of Georgetown, Ill., international representative, asserted: "We have the arm of the United States Government around our necks."

"It looks like the Wagner Act has made Harlan County safe for democracy," Tittler told the crowd. Peter Jackson, Negro union representative from Pennsylvania, assured miners the "United Mine Workers is in Harlan County to stay."

Organizers for the union circulated among the crowd seeking members.

Miners interviewed at random in various camps in the county, expressed different views on the unionization campaign.

Disagreement on Killing.
Coal miners and officials scouted Tittler's report that the killing Saturday night of a man listed as Lloyd Clouse, a miner at Verda, was connected with Clouse's union activities. Witnesses said the shooting resulted from a brawl. Charles Middleton, peace officer at Verda, said the killing was the result of a private quarrel. Tittler intimated he might have the incident brought to the attention of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee.

Ed Hall, vice-president of the United Automobile Workers, who flew here from Detroit, said the company agreed not to discriminate against any man for union affiliation or union activity and that it would recognize seniority rights. Clarence Sullivan, plant superintendent, confirmed this report of the agreement.

conference of union leaders and unidentified company executives who flew here from Detroit. Hall said company and shop stewards and the local plant management would negotiate on grievances between employer and employee.

The UAW vice-president also announced settlement of a dispute which had caused union leaders to threaten a strike at the Oakland Fisher Body plant, a unit of General Motors. The union had planned a strike in protest against the discharge of Fred Whobrey from the Fisher plant for asserted union activities. Hall said Whobrey would be reinstated.

SIT-DOWNERS QUIT DETROIT DRUG PLANT

18 Detained After One Group Turns Fire Hose on Policemen.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., April 26.—Several hundred strikers evacuated the Parke Davis & Co. plant this afternoon after holding several departments of the pharmaceutical factory since 8 a. m. Eighteen of the strikers were detained for investigation.
Most of the strikers left peaceably when 200 uniformed police and 50 detectives entered the plant.
Police said, however, that one small group of men who had barricaded a door leading to a sixth floor department where a $2,000,000 stock of narcotics was stored turned fire hose on a police detachment, including high ranking police officials.
The arrests were made after that clash.
The plant employs 2100 workers.

ORDINANCE ON PLUMBING PURCHASES DECLARED VOID

Judge Kirkwood Issues Permanent Injunction Upholding "Tares sonable" Restraining Ordinance.
A city ordinance passed in February, 1936 requiring wholesalers and retailers of plumbing supplies to report purchasers of plumbing requiring drains and to obtain written statements from the purchasers as to where the plumbing was to be installed, was declared void by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood
today.
Six firms in the plumbing business obtained a permanent injunction against enforcement of the ordinance by the city, Judge Kirkwood upholding them in their contest that the law was an unreasonable restraint upon private business, too broad, and restricted liberty of contract. The city contended it was a health measure.
The ordinance, backed by the master plumbers, enabled better enforcement of the ordinance requiring permits for installation of plumbing fixtures.
The plaintiff firms were Sears
Roebuck & Co., Central Hardware
Co., New Market Hardware Co., Mound City Plumbing Supply Co.,
Anton Baffa Wrecking & Supply Co., and Century Plumbing Co. The first three are defendants in police court on charges of violating the ordinance, for which the punishment was a fine of from $25 to $500. The City Council's office said it had not decided whether to appeal, and would ask that the police court cases be continued.

NEW TRIAL DENIED LOSER IN CITY COMMITTEE CONTEST

Court Overrules Motion of James H. Stewart, Unseated Democrat.
A motion for a new trial made by James H. Stewart, who was unseated as Democratic City Committee member of the Thirtieth Ward in a decree by Judge Robert J. Kirkwood a month ago, was overruled
today.
Hendy J. Phelan, a Deputy Circuit Clerk, was declared winner of the election in last August's primary by a majority of 86 votes, when he contested after Stewart, a city employee, had apparently been elected by 19 votes on the basis of the official count.
Phelan, a brother of Police Commissioner John J. Phelan, is aligned with a Democratic faction that at that time was opposed to Mayor Dickmann, while Stewart was supported by Dickmann. The groups in the ward have since patched up their differences. Phelan will take over the committee office as soon as certification of the Judge's decision is made by the Circuit Clerk.

MAN WALKS IN PATH OF TRAIN, IS KILLED

Granite City Furniture Dealer Hit Few Minutes Before Watchman Was Due.

Mathias Hintesser, 59-year-old Granite City furniture dealer, was killed yesterday when he walked in front of a freight train at Niedringhaus avenue crossing, Granite City.
His body was carried 80 feet before the engineer could stop.
Hintesser, preoccupied with the problem of moving the stock of his store from Nineteenth street and Grand avenue to a storeroom at his home, 1635 Spruce street, apparently failed to hear or see the locomotive when he reached the unguarded crossing. A watchman was due for duty there at 8 a. m., nine minutes after the accident.
Members of the Wabash train crew said they saw Hintesser step on the tracks but the engineer did not have time to check speed. The furniture dealer was on his way to the store to superintend loading of his merchandise on a truck, having decided to vacate the store and seek another place of business.

Boy Bicycle Hurt; Auto Goes On.
Alfred Malone, 16 years old, 5811A Theodosia avenue, was injured early today when knocked from his bicycle while riding in the 5100 block of Natural Bridge avenue, by an automobile, the driver of which failed to stop. At City Hospital it was said his condition was serious.

George Fields, Comedian, Dies.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 26.—George Fields, blackface comedian and radio, fell dead in Pennsylvania Station yesterday. He was half of the radio team of "Honeyboy and Sassafras," which began nationally two years ago. He was born in Grove Springs, Mo., in 1894 and ran away from home at the age of 16 to play in medicine, tent and minstrel shows and musical comedy. His widow survives.

Kills Wife's Sister and Self.
By the Associated Press.
GATE CITY, Va., April 26.—Two persons were shot to death and another was seriously wounded at a roadside near here yesterday in what the coroner said was a murder and suicide. The coroner said Leo Smith, 24 years old, of Wabburg, Ky., fatally shot his sister-in-law, Ethel Hutton, 18, turned his pistol on his wife, Clara, 23, shooting her in both legs, and then fired two bullets into his own chest, ending his life.

$250,000 STATE RELIEF BILL OFFERED IN HOUSE

Put Over Till Tomorrow Because of Fight on $60,000 for Administration Cost.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 26.—A resolution calling for an emergency appropriation of $250,000 for direct unemployment relief during May, and $60,000 for administrative expenses during March, April and May, was introduced in the House this afternoon, but action was deferred until tomorrow when it became apparent a fight would be made to reduce the allowance for administration.

The House was working without a quorum and supporters of the resolution feared it would be beaten or amended if taken up today. After the resolution was introduced by Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, Democratic majority floor leader, Representative T. A. Shockley of

AVIATOR KILLED

—Associated Press Wirephoto.
LIEUT. ROBERT S. FISHER SON of Col. H. E. Fisher, commander of Scott Field, Belleville, who was killed when he fell out of an army plane near Pilot Point, Texas, Saturday.

Wayne County offered an amendment which would cut the allowances for salaries for the three months from $60,000 to $15,000, or an average of $5000 a month. The resolution carries an allowance for three months of relief administrative costs because no salaries have been paid for relief administration for March and April, it is said.

Shockley asserted an allowance of $20,000 a month for administration for the three months would be excessive and recalled the Legislature had allowed $8000 a month for such expenses when similar emergency relief appropriations were authorized for January and February. The amounts allowed will be deducted from whatever appropriation finally is made by the Legislature for relief during 1937 and 1938.

"This relief administration is going to get bigger than the State if we don't put some curb on expenditures for supervision," Shockley said.

The resolution was drafted after a conference this morning by Gov. Stark and Wallace Crossley, State Relief Director, with Senate and House leaders.

Crossley figures on balance. Crossley said there was a balance of about $100,000 from previous appropriations which would be available for relief purposes next month, making a total of $80,000 to be spent in direct relief during May if the resolution is adopted.

Approximately one-third, or $117,000, will be allotted to St. Louis, Crossley said. That amount is about $65,000 short of what the city had requested. Crossley said he had been informed that St. Louis' relief bill in May would cost about $80,000, of which 40 per cent was to be provided by the city and the rest was expected to be received from the State.

The Legislature already has appropriated $1,600,000 for relief during the first four months of this year, of which St. Louis received $938,000. The biennial relief appropriation bill has not been introduced in the House yet, but it is understood the measure will call for an allotment of $10,000,000. Relief funds already provided will be reduced from the biennial appropriation.

Those attending the conference, in addition to Stark and Crossley, were: Senator Kinney of St. Louis, Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, Senator Clark of Richmond, Senator Rollins, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; Representative John Taylor, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Speaker Christy of the House.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION POST FOR FRANK J. LAHEY

Gov. Stark Sends Nomination to Senate; Earl H. Shackelford Likely to Be Referee.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 26.—Gov. Stark today appointed Frank J. Lahey of St. Louis as labor representative on the Workmen's Compensation Commission, to fill the unexpired term of Orlin H. Shaw of Jefferson City, who died in February. The appointment was sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Lahey is 46 years old, and has served during the last four years as referee for the commission. Previously he was employed as a superintendent for a St. Louis construction company. He is a member of the Bridge Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' Union, and was organizer of a union labor Stark-for-Governor Club in St. Louis. His appointment was endorsed by organized labor in the State and St. Louis State Senators and Representatives. If confirmed, Lahey will serve until November, 1940.

Gov. Stark announced that Earl H. Shackelford of Hannibal, former State commander of the American Legion, probably would be named as referee for the commission to succeed Lahey.

California Group for Court Bill. LONG BEACH, Cal., April 26.—The Progressive Commonwealth Federation convention yesterday adopted a resolution approving President Roosevelt's judiciary proposals. Another resolution urged "speedy enactment of a constitutional amendment placing human rights above property rights, and providing that Congress have power to make all laws which in its judgment would be necessary to provide for the general welfare of the people." The federation is a coalition of two minor parties.

PISTOL EXPERT CALLED AT DENHARDT TRIAL

Takes Stand After Defense Moves to Strike Out Testimony of Heelprints.

By the Associated Press.

NEW CASTLE, Ky., April 26.—The defense moved today to strike out testimony regarding heel prints near where Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor was found shot to death and which the Commonwealth's line of evidence indicated was part of its effort to prove that Henry H. Denhardt struggled with the widow before shooting her.

Circuit Judge Charles C. Marshall, presiding at the trial of the 61-year-old former Lieutenant-Governor charged with the murder of his 40-year-old fiancée, conferred with opposing counsel in his chambers and then took the motion under advisement. The testimony was given earlier in the trial by Roy Garr, a brother of Mrs. Taylor, and by Sheriff Walter Briggs of Oldham County. Garr said his father's shoes fitted the marks.

The court room was packed again as Commonwealth's Attorney H. B. Kinsolving launched into his scientific evidence with testimony from Clyde T. Erwin, a ballistics expert of King's Mill, O., after Dr. John T. Walsh, La Grange, the first witness of the day, had been excused. Dr. Walsh and his fellow townsman, Dr. H. B. Blaydes performed an autopsy on Mrs. Taylor's body.

Waiting to follow Erwin to the stand were F. C. Buckmaster, Pittsburgh, chief chemist of Allegheny County, and Detective-Sergeant John J. Mosser, Louisville, who made paraffin tests of the hands of both Mrs. Taylor and Denhardt in an effort to determine who fired the fatal shot.

Mrs. Taylor's two daughters, Mary Pryor Taylor Brown, 22, and Frances Taylor, 16, were in the courtroom.

More Than 1200 Persons See Film at Four Presentations in Private Hall.

More than 1200 persons saw four showings at a private hall yesterday of the anti-Nazi motion picture "Der Kampf," which was barred from Municipal Auditorium by Mayor Dickmann, Friday, on complaint of the German Consul, Reinhold Freytag, and because its sponsor, the German-American Club, refused to permit city officials to view it in advance.

Handbills urging protests to the Mayor against his action were distributed and protest petitions were circulated when the film was shown yesterday at Hilberian Hall, 3619 Finney avenue.

BALLOT INQUIRY IN KANSAS CITY MAY RUN 3 YEARS

Federal Judge Reeves Discusses Time Needed to Consider Evidence Still Before Grand Juries.

NUMBER INDICTED
 NOW REACHES 126

32 Have Been Convicted and Sentenced — No Defendant Has Yet Been Acquitted.

By the Associated Press.
 KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 26.—

Prison bars will cast their threat over Kansas City's voting machinery for perhaps three years to come.
 Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves, who last December directed an ever-widening investigation of election frauds here, said yesterday that grand juries may require that much more time to sift the mass of evidence still awaiting study.

Judge Reeves dismissed one grand jury Saturday, the first called in the Nov. 3 election purge.
 He has called another for May 4 and it will sit until next November.
 "It is my information," Judge Reeves said, "that the extent of the alleged vote frauds will require several terms of grand juries to cover them all."

"I would not be surprised to see the investigation continue as long as the three-year statute of limitations permits."

The first jury indicted 126 election officials and party workers.
 In six groups. Thirty-two were convicted and given sentences ranging from three years in prison to one year on probation. Eight pleaded no defense and were placed on probation. A mistrial was declared in the case of three defendants.

Not a single defendant has yet been acquitted.

Pendergast Mentioned.
 But spectacular as have been what Judge Reeves called "the revelations of wholesale election frauds, there is an even more spectacular element in the Kansas City political picture. That element is a personality, the personality of T. J.
 "Boss" Pendergast, Democratic leader.

Only once has the name of Pen-dergast been spoken in court and then it was ruled out speedily, except for the initials "T. J."

Mrs. Ruth Hogenborn, an election official and Government witness at the third trial, told of a dark-complexioned, extremely accommodating man who appeared at intervals at her polling place
 Nov. 3.

She said she heard him tell Gilbert Stevens, Democratic precinct captain, not to get too nervous.
 Later she said James E. Maxey, Republican judge, told her the man was "from T. J.'s office." She added her assumption that "T. J." was Pendergast, but the assumption was ruled out.

United States District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, chief Federal prosecutor, runs a close second, incidentally, to Pendergast in the matter of silence.

"My job is to prosecute cases, not to predict or hold post mortems," he says.

Since a citizens' committee first laid a mass of fraud charges before Judge Reeves, Milligan said a con-

Claim for $10,000 Filed Against Her by Former Berlin Movie Man.

By the Associated Press.
 LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 26.—
 Greta Garbo may soon make a court appearance here. James P.
 McCarty, attorney, said a process server who attempted to reach her for three weeks, finally caught her automobile at a stop signal and tossed a subpoena into her lap.

The lawyer said H. Fitzpatrick, assignee for David Shratter, former head of the Trianon Film Co. of Berlin, sought to recover $10,000 which Shratter says he lent her in 1924. The actress was then known as Greta Gustafson. McCarty said. The suit has been set tentatively for trial May 2.

Cardinals' Star Fans 10 Members of Cubs to Bring His Total to 16

Fine Fielding Plays by Medwick and Mize Help Ace of Redbird Staff to Run His Scoreless Innings Streak to 19—More Than 9000 Persons See Dean Win, 4-0.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Once upon a time there was a strange young man named Jerome Herman Dean who had more grandmothers than a city committee man has relatives, an uncontrollable desire to kick the kind old grand-mamas squarely in the teeth, but a strong right arm with a great magic that made all the kin folk take it and like it.

Jerome Herman kicked Grandma Rickey and Grandma Braden and Grandma Frisch and Grandma Phan and Grandma Mize. The neighbors thought it was the last straw—or the last molar—when Jerome kicked Grandma Mize. You see, Grandma Mize is of the press, and Jerome Herman's kick at the Fourth Estate started wave after wave of indignation and threatened to rock the foundations of the portable typewriter industry.

But that strong right arm of Jerome Herman Dean hasn't lost its magic. He has pitched two games for the 1937 Cardinals. He has hurled 10 innings against the Cincinnati Reds and nine against the Chicago Cubs. They haven't scored a run yet against the Great Bull in Baseball's China Shop.

Boos Drowned by Cheers. Even baseball fans have a kindly feeling toward grandmothers, and they booed Jerome Herman when he went to the hill in Ohio's Queen City on the National League's opening day. There were boos again yesterday, boos from the home-town customers, as Jerome Herman's name was chanted by the announcer as he gave the lineup for the drizzle-moistened afternoon. But already that magic right arm had begun to work its charm. There were boos, but there were cheers, too. And soon the boos were drowned.

Dizzy Dean's right arm was in grand form. For an inning he needed stalwart help from his comrades. But the help was there. Joe Medwick raced to the left-field wall for a glove-hand catch of Augie Galan's powerful drive. Johnny Mize lunged and stabbed a line drive from the bat of Billy Herman. But Jerome Herman, the great Dizzy Dean, didn't need much help after that. Dizzy struck out 10 Cubs. He held the enemy to five hits and as he cast his magic spell over one batter after another, the crowd of 9046 cash customers forgot all about the kicked-in teeth of the grandmothers. What if Branch Rickey did build the organization that gave Dean a chance to earn a king's ransom in a few short years? What if Dizzy did kick the Rickeys teeth? What if Sam Braden did sign most of the fat checks that went to build up the young but sturdy bankroll of the remarkable Dean? A man has to learn to "take it" in the baseball business.

16 Strikeouts for Season. Frisch can buy store teeth. Even Grandma Phan has proved again and again that kicked-in teeth are quickly forgotten. And why bother about Grandma Mize and the Fourth Estate and the foundations of the portable typewriter industry? How that Dizzy Dean can pitch! Two games—two shutouts! Not a run in 19 innings! Ten strikeouts against the Cubs and 16 in the two shutout victories! At the bat, the grandmas worry about the teeth, if they must. Pitching is the thing and Jerome Herman Dean certainly knows how to fog the old apple through the strike zone.

Dizzy Dean, Pitcher. There will be more teeth-kicking, but what of it? Just a few boos for a few days and then that magic right arm will do its stuff and once again, for the hundredth or thousandth time, the jers will become cheers. And after all, the Cardinals didn't hire Dizzy Dean to be good to his grandmother. They hired him as a baseball pitcher, and what a whale of a job he can do!

Billy Herman, always a thorn in the side of even the greatest, was the only Chicago batter who bothered Jerome Herman as he made his second start a shutout triumph. There were only five Cub hits, as told, and Herman made three of them. But one batter can't do too much damage to a pitcher, unless he hits the ball out of the park, and Herman didn't do that.

His hits were all singles and there was no other Chicago batter who could solve the Dean assortment of fast curves, tantalizing slow hooks and burning fast balls. Rip Collins singled in the first inning and Kenny O'Dea doubled in the second, but although O'Dea's double started the inning, it did no harm, as Dizzy retired Hack on a pop fly and then struck his strikeout stride to fan Jurgens and Lee.

One Out Reaches Third. Cavarretta reached first on Stuart Martin's tumble in the first inning and reached third on Collins' single, but that was the only time a Chicago runner advanced beyond second base and O'Dea on his second-inning double was the only other Cub who moved beyond first.

Dizzy pitched his brilliant game in the face of much heckling from the Cubs, too. Charley Grimes never let a Dean game go through without an early protest that Dizzy is using an illegal delivery, whenever a runner is on base.

Charley alleges that Dizzy, after

Cards-Pirates

Game Postponed

TODAY'S scheduled game between the Cardinals and Pirates was postponed on account of rain, wet grounds and cold weather. The Pirates of the Redbird organization announced early this morning.

If the weather improves tomorrow, the series will open with Bob Weiland pitching against Cy Blanton. The Pirates are leading the league, having scored four victories without suffering a defeat.

raising his arms during his preliminary motion, fails to obey the rule which provides that he must hesitate after bringing his hands together in front of him. Charley protested as early as the second inning and Umpire Magerkurth made several subsequent trips to the mound to caution Dizzy. The Cubs have caused Dizzy much trouble during his major league career.

They contend that they can beat him whenever they can persuade the umpire to force him to obey that rule. But Dizzy, remaining calm in the face of the heckling, seemed to improve with observance of the rule and it was after the ragging started that Dizzy began to mow down the enemy on strikes.

The Cardinal Attack. There had to be an attack, of course, to give Dizzy runs with which to achieve his victory and which was more than sufficient. Medwick singled to center in the fourth inning and when Pepper Martin hit a double-play grounder to Herman, the Cub second baseman fouled and the Cards had the break they needed to break the scoreless tie. Medwick reached third and Martin second as the ball caromed out to center field and after Durocher was passed intentionally, Ogorowski singled to center to score Medwick.

Medwick doubled in the sixth, Mize walked, O'Dea made a wild throw trying to pick Mize off first and Medwick scored and Mize reached second. Then Pepper Martin doubled Mize home. Stuart Martin's safe punt, Bordagary's sacrifice, Medwick's long fly and Mize's single produced the fourth Cardinal run in the seventh inning.

RED BIRD NOTES. Pitcher Lee spent much of his time on the ground, finding it extremely difficult to field bouncing baseballs.

"Our boys still are frightened when they hear the thunder of Pepper Martin's feet," Jimmy Gallagher, a Chicago baseball writer, remarked when Pepper's grounder was fumbled in the fourth inning.

Dizzy fanned Lee three times, Jurgens and Collins twice each and Cavarretta, O'Dea and Hack once each.

The attendance of 9046 was good, considering the chilly weather and the fact that it was announced over a radio station that the game had been postponed on account of the morning rain.

Today's postponed game will be played as part of a double-header Sunday, Aug. 15.

Friday will be Ladies Day.

How the Redbirds Stole the Show

FELLER'S ARM NOT INJURED IN BROWNE GAME, O'NEILL STATES

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., April 26.—Bob Feller's pitching arm was "all right" yesterday, Manager Steve O'Neill of the Cleveland Indians said.

The "million-dollar" arm—object of tender ministrations from trainers and physicians after the 13-year-old strikeout artist disclosed to O'Neill he had pulled a muscle—will not delay Feller's return to the game, O'Neill said.

"He'll be ready to take his regular turn," the Indians' pilot predicted.

Feller retired from Saturday's game after fanning 11 Browns in six innings, for an average inning record almost equal to his pace last year, when he set a new league strikeout record of 17 against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Away to a bad first inning, in which he allowed two hits and walked four men to give St. Louis the four runs by which it won, 4-3, Feller did not let O'Neill into the end of the sixth that he had hurt his arm in throwing a curve to Bill Knickerbocker, lead-off man in the first.

Although his control improved as he went along, the kink in his right arm still troubled him in the sixth, he told O'Neill. Today O'Neill said the injury was not serious, and Feller himself asserted: "I'll be back on the job in a few days."

Interviewed on a radio hour by Hunter Hofer, 12-year-old editor of a Sheboygan (Wis.) periodical, Feller declined to guess how many games he would win, but advised his young interrogator he'd let him know in October.

GRIMES CHASED SECOND TIME IN TWO DAYS

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 26.—Burling Grimes, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was tossed out of his second ball game in two days this afternoon.

Grimes became involved in a dispute with Umpire Goetz after the arbiter had called one of Dodger Ralph Birkhofer's pitches a ball. Possibly Grimes was particularly bitter because the Boston Bees had just scored their seventh run in two innings.

Goetz tossed him off the field. He also was ejected yesterday during the course of Brooklyn's defeat of the Phillies.

Poughkeepsie Favorites. Yale, Navy and Harvard crews are early favorites in this year's Poughkeepsie race. Syracuse is rated a dark horse.

WAR ADMIRAL IN CHESAPEAKE STAKES, SATURDAY, ASHAMED THE BOOKMAKING SLATE ON THE KENTUCKY DERBY

By the Associated Press.

That smashing victory by War Admiral in the Chesapeake Stakes, Saturday, also smashed the bookmaking slate on the Kentucky Derby.

The Man O'War colt shifted from fourth choice to second and dropped from 8 to 1 to 4 in Charley Burke's quotations, and from 10 to 1 to 6 in Carroll's price list.

Burke makes War Admiral equal favorite with Pompoon and thinks very highly of the Glen Riddle Farm's candidate.

"Should Pompoon run anything but a very impressive race in his next test," observed Burke, "War Admiral will surely go to the post a short-priced favorite for the Derby."

Bettors who have played other horses are now hopping on War Admiral even at 4 to 1. That seems foolish in view of the many things that can happen, between now and post time, to improve the chances of other eligibles.

Don't Be Hasty. POMPOON's next start will be in the Wood Memorial. Even if Pompoon is beaten in that race, don't let it discourage you, if you happen to like the son of Pompey. Horses beaten in the Wood Memorial have gone on to victory in the derby or other great three-year-old stakes a few weeks later.

In 1935 Head Play finished third in the Wood Memorial and was beaten a nose by Broker's Tip in the Derby. With better jockeyship by his rider Fisher, Head Play would have won. He won the Preakness the next week and Broker's Tip was badly beaten.

In 1935 Omaha finished third in the Wood Memorial but won the Kentucky Derby a few days later. Last year Granville finished second in the Wood Memorial but went on to become the "horse of the year."

Grimes Chased Second Time in Two Days. The Wood Memorial race will be decided next Saturday. It is at only one mile and 70 yards and that is the reason why too much significance should not be attached to defeat in this event. However, if Pompoon is beaten after having set the pace, he'll undoubtedly give way to War Admiral or some other candidate as Derby favorite.

Stranger Than Fiction. THE Browns played to 7000 in the season's home opening and the Cardinals topped that by 10,000.

Last week you probably read with poyeyed amazement that the opening-day crowd at Jersey City numbered more than 31,000, while even yesterday the Jersey City team drew 13,000 or more.

Added together these two gates equal almost half of what the Browns drew at home last year in 77 games.

An International League game in a minor community outdrawing a major league game in a population center of more than triple Jersey City is one for the book.

Tie that one.

Tough Break for Bonetti.

THAT was a hard game for Julio Bonetti of the Browns to lose. He was charged with the task of leading the Browns to a victory over the Cardinals in the first game of the series.

Browns' Game at Detroit Postponed; Lose Cleveland Final

By W. J. McGoogan.

DETROIT, April 26.—Rogers Hornsby and his Browns still meaning today over the game which Julio Bonetti failed to win from the Indians at Cleveland yesterday as they prepared their first contest of the series of three with the Detroit Tigers tomorrow. Today's game was postponed because of cold and wet grounds.

The word "if" was never used oftener nor more dolefully than by the Browns in discussing Julio and yesterday's 5 to 4 defeat at the hands of Cleveland in 11 innings.

Bonetti, a slender youth, 24 years of age of Italian extraction from San Francisco, made his first start in an American League game and was within one out of a victory, with a two run lead, when he weakened sufficiently for the Indians to find him for three successive hits and tie the score. Then when the first batter in the tenth inning hit safely, he was removed and Jack Knott finished to be charged with the defeat.

His Different in Big League. "It was a tough loss," Julio said sadly on the train coming from Cleveland, his usually smiling face clouded. "You know this big league stuff is much better than the Western League with its bus jumps and eating hamburger sandwiches and I would like to stick around as long as possible."

This youngster signed a Browns' contract a few days before the season opened. He belonged to the Des Moines club and was loaned to the Browns as a batting practice pitcher, but he made such an impression on Hornsby that the Browns bought him for a sum said to be around $5000.

He earned a chance to start against the Indians by his work in the South and against the Cardinals in the spring series. Hornsby is anxious to see how his young pitcher will go, so Julio was given the assignment to face Cleveland, not the easiest club in the league for any pitcher to defeat.

The Browns played inspired ball behind Bonetti and it appeared that he was headed for certain victory when the bomb struck. They picked up a run in the second on Bell's double and Hemley's single, but the Indians tied the score on two hits and a walk in the fourth.

In the fifth, the Browns got three more runs on four hits, one a single by Bonetti, and an error by Cleveland. In their half the Indians came up with one on three singles.

Lary Starts the Trouble. Thus it stood when the Indians went to bat in the ninth. Pytlak, first up, fanned. Billy Sullivan batted for Galehouse and Bell made a fine leaping catch against the fence of his drive. The fans were filling out of the park as Lary came up. He singled and then Hughes doubled and Lary stopped at third. Averill bounced a slow single through the infield and the tying runs came home.

Heving went in to pitch for the Indians in the tenth and the Browns failed to score. When Solters hit safely in the Cleveland half, Hornsby waved Bonetti out and Jack Knott went in to pitch. He got out of the inning all right and the Browns missed a great scoring chance in the eleventh, when ## Giants' Pitchers Yielded Only Six Tallies in Winning Three of First Four Battles.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Aside from old Jupe Pluvius, who led both leagues for the week, the opening fireworks along the big time baseball front were largely featured by the performances of the pitching troupes of the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates.

While Philadelphia's Phillies and Athletics, both rated as sure shots for the league cellular this season, were furnishing the surprises with unlooked for winning performances, the Giant and Pirates hurlers made those two outfits look tougher than ever in the National League picture.

The Pirates went to the wars four times and came home on top on each occasion on the strength of top-flight flinging by Cy Blanton, Dutch Brandt, Waite Hoyt and Rookie Russ Bauers. Meeting such highly regarded opposition as the Cubs and Reds, these four gave up only 24 hits in more than 33 innings of duty. Their performances left the Pirates as the only undefeated team in either league at the end of the first week of play.

The Giants, meantime, served notice that they were ready to defend the National League flag by tossing King Carol Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Clyde Castelman and Cliff Melton in their four starts to wind up with three victories and one defeat. The only loss was charged to Rookie Melton, but he allowed only six hits and struck out 13 men in his debut, while Hubbell, Schumacher and Castelman limited opposition to a total of 14 hits in 27 innings and fanned 15.

Sharing the interest with these outfits were the St. Louis Cardinals, showing more fight than ever in spite of a weak pitching staff, and the world champion New York Yankees, who found their heavy-hitting range only today after being rained out three days during the week.

The Cards, with Dixie Dean winning two ball games against tough opposition, wound up with three wins in four starts. The Yanks, although minus Joe Dimaggio and holdout Pitcher Charlie Ruffing, came home with two victories in three games on the strength of their clouting attack and despite weak pitching.

Chief asset of the Gas House Gang in their drive to second place in the league was the heaviest hitting attack in either circuit. They clubbed enemy hurling for 58 hits, considerably higher than any other outfit, and led both loops in run-making with 37 tallies for their five games.

The Philadelphia entries in the pennant derby both wound up with better than .500 averages for the week. The Phillies, paced by a star left-hand pitching rookie in Wayne Lamaster from Louisville who won two games, came in with three wins in five starts. Connie Mack's "apathetic" Athletics of last year received unusually fine pitching from a set of youngsters and, with Indian Bob Johnson setting the pace in the home run circus with three circuit clouts, took the Washington Senators three times, while losing only one game.

Six Runs Against Giants.

Defensively, the Giants and their tight pitching and infield play, topped everything in sight, allowing only six runs in four games. They were aided and abetted in this largely through the purchases Boston Bees, who went 36 innings without a run, fanned 34 batters, and wound up the week with one victory and four setbacks.

Afield the Yanks and Tigers in the American League, and the young Phillies in the National League, showed the best records with two errors apiece.

Disappointments were numerous all down the line, but Cincinnati's Reds, winless in four starts, easily came through with the dubious distinction of leading the way. Rated as a "dark horse" in the National League because of their alleged "toughhouse" antics, the Reds didn't show much of anything as they went down twice each before the Cards and Pirates. In the American League, the Senators, showing only one win and three losses, found little on the up to base their hopes as the potential upsetting influence in the loop this year.

ST. LOUIS FIVE BOWLS 2585 IN A.B.C. TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Tony Slanina and Mike Straka today were the last of the 1936 American Bowling Congress champion to relinquish their title. The Chicago pair, which topped the doubles field at Indianapolis last year with a 1947 count—13 pins short of the 1958 tops, scored in the current tourney two weeks ago by Virgil Gibbs, Kansas City, Mo., and Nelson Burton, Dallas, Tex., totaled 1205 today.

Slanina did his best to retain the championship with a 663 series but Straka was off form and counted only 542.

With Straka scoring games of 210-222-242 for a sparkling 674 series and Slanina totaling 699 on games of 246-163-247, the Windy City pair easily topped the singles competition. Had the pair collected their singles totals in the doubles event they would have totaled 1380 for second place in the standing.

The leaders were unchanged after the Sunday rolling. Albert Baum and Alfred Schmeling, Milwaukee, posted 1235 in the doubles; to lead the division. Harold Asplund, Denver, Colo., scored 665 for the best singles count while Bevo's place, Rockford, Ill., rolled up 2658 for high count in the team competition.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Question of Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE decision of Judge O'Malley refusing to order the production of the ballots in the fraudulent river-front bond issue election suggests the following question:

Assuming that the statute of Missouri applicable to St. Louis, providing that the ballot boxes may be opened, is unconstitutional in part, and that the general statute is in force, which provides that the ballots shall be destroyed at the expiration of 12 months following the election, and supposing further that the ballots were not destroyed, but are still in existence, is that a sufficient reason for holding that they should not be used as evidence in the prosecution of a case charging a person with an election fraud? Under the authorities, if the ballots were produced at the trial, they could be used in evidence.

State vs. Pomeroy, 130 Mo. 496.
Commonwealth vs. Ryan (Mass.), 32 N. E. Rep. 349.
The last-named case was one where ballots were used in evidence which should have been destroyed. If the ballots were produced at the trial, they would be admissible.

This question is not the point decided by Judge O'Malley, however. The question before him was whether he should order such ballots which were not destroyed, although possibly they should have been, produced before the grand jury. The Massachusetts case cited would indicate that he could do so. But should a court order the production before the grand jury of evidence which in his opinion would not be in existence but for a violation of the law? If the Judge is right as to the constitutionality of the statute referred to, his conclusion would seem reasonable.

What can the Circuit Attorney do about it? He can't take an appeal. An application for a writ of mandamus will certainly be refused. It is not likely that a writ of certiorari will be granted. An application for a subpoena duces tecum presented to any of the other Judges of the criminal courts will almost certainly be denied.

But the Circuit Attorney can go on with the investigation of the last primary election, have the grand jury issue indictments, and then he can, if he will, prosecute these cases vigorously, and if he can succeed anything like as well as the United States District Attorney in Kansas City has been succeeding in his prosecution of election fraud cases, we will hereafter enjoy at least reasonably fair and honest elections.

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP.

Or Else.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I AM one of the 800,000 who voted for the conservation of wildlife resources for Missouri. I urge the 800,000 to write Gov. Stark and to the Legislature to give us what we voted for. Tell them our organization will function as a unit from now on to get what we want. Let all of us do this to show them in Jefferson City we are going to get what we are paying and voting for.

A SPORTSMAN.

Mob Violence in the South.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE article of April 16 from the Arkansas Gazette, "How the Supreme Court Saved the South," was most thought-provoking. The writer, with very evident sincerity, praised the constructive service rendered by the Supreme Court following the bloody civil strife.

But does he reflect on the fact that the South represents not only the beloved soil of its native whites but also the birthplace of thousands of dark-skinned humans whose trials and sufferings occupy a distinct space in history?

AGAIN, NO COMPROMISE!

There is renewed talk at Washington about the possibility of a compromise on the President's court-enlargement proposal that would let him add two, instead of a maximum of six, new Justices to the Supreme Court.

Seemingly it is the idea that an agreement on two new Judges would lure into the administration camp a number of Democratic Senators who are against the packing plan but who want to "get right" with those in control of the party. A two-Judge "compromise," the idea goes, would provide these Senators with a handy face-saving device.

The packing principle, of course, would remain. That principle, in the circumstances created by the President, would be the same whether he called for the creation of one new judgeship or 80.

We repeat what we said in an editorial on March 19, when the idea of a compromise was first broached:

The President has raised a fundamental issue. It is whether or not the court shall be packed in the interest of particular legislation that he desires—whether or not the constitutional system of three co-ordinate branches of government shall be broken down.

The issue should be fought to a finish along a straight line. Shall the President be permitted to gain the power that he seeks and to create thereby a precedent fraught with danger to the Republic, or shall the President be checked? That is the question to be settled.

Let the President's plan be faced squarely and disposed of. The essential thing is that the President be told—and that all future Presidents be told—that executive power cannot be increased at the whim of the executive.

The issue is clear as daylight. The President has raised it; let him have his answer. Let him have an answer clear and unequivocal. A great principle is at stake, and it admits of no compromise.

It is earnestly to be hoped, for the sake of the preservation of our constitutional system, that Senators who are against the packing scheme will resist all efforts to bring them into line by means of a spurious "compromise" that leaves the essential evil of the scheme intact.

A FRENCHMAN LOOKS AT FRANCE.

Unless Andre Tardieu is terribly mistaken, things are in a bad way in France. Here's what he says:

Her people believe they are sovereign, and they are not sovereign. They believe they are free, and they are not free. They believe they are equal, and they are not equal. They believe they are represented by their elected assemblies, and they are not represented. They believe they are protected by the laws, and they are oppressed by them.

He says a lot more, in a ringing exhortation, "Frenchmen, Awake!" There seems to be nothing to add except—

IN THE COURTS OF HOLLYWOOD.

Under a Los Angeles dateline, Hollywood moved out of the columnar gossip last week into the "mirth and moment" of the front page, where justice, in various roles, contrived three happy endings.

The drama in which the screen's reigning hero was miscast in the villain's part probably commanded the biggest public. "Right forever on the scaffold" got a Popeye wallop as the plot wound its devious way to truth triumphant. Whoever it was that damozel of the early '20s wandered with in the moonlight down English lanes, it was not the luminous lover of our Lotus land. That starchy favorite of fortune owes nothing to the cricket fields of Eton. He never saw them. He never heard the nightingales whose cadences Chaucer transposed into words. The gold and purple of his present estate flickered only on the far horizon of his day dreams. He was having a two-fisted fight with economics. The althly tale is done, a palpable fraud exposed, the dame departs from the news, but as lines and situations conspire, as they will, to bestow his path with roses, it will reconcile some of his admirers to know that once upon a time Clark Gable was a lumberjack.

The latest troubled turn in the affairs of Angelus Temple was only one more chapter in the griefs of the prophetess. How old Evil Incarnate pursues that gorgeous creature! It just seems as if Satan, whenever he has a day off, twirls his mustaches, smooths his cravat and rings up Almee McPherson. What resources of spirit the woman must have to carry on her roccoco and lucrative mission! But carry on she does, despite the imps of the Adversary, and salvation is served as per schedule and with swank and ceremony. Well, Almee got it in the neck this time, but her titian head is still unbowed.

In the Barrymore dissolution, under the latitude of poetic license, Elaine walked away "in maiden meditation fancy free," and John was an absentee Lancelot.

Let us pick Byron's pocket and be done: "The mountains look on Hollywood and Hollywood looks on the sea."

THE G. O. P.'S FUTURE.

There are 17,000,000 Republicans in the United States, according to the latest official count, and, to paraphrase Mr. Coolidge, "that looks like a lot of Republicans." Numerically, it is a lot. But what does it signify, politically, when the opposition has 37,750,000, when the score by states is 46 to 2, when the electoral college vote is 523 to 87?

That was the question Ogden Mills was thinking about the other night, though he didn't put it in those words, when he discussed before the New School for Social Research "The Future of the Republican Party." He did face the fact that the Republican party is today the minority party. Gibraltars like Pennsylvania and Michigan, he acknowledged, are now doubtful, and New York, Illinois and Massachusetts have gone over to the enemy. Why? "The issues which gave it (the Republican party) vigor in its prime have vanished. The conditions which insured its supremacy have disappeared." But he is not downhearted. The G. O. P., he feels, "with its roots grounded in the American tradition," can soon become the dominant party. The way is clear. With a "revitalized and militant organization," with leadership capable of "developing a program," the erstwhile communists who have strayed after false gods will return to the faith.

Those are hopeful sentiments. The phraseology is excellent. But the content simply isn't there. Still, the speech we have been considering is the first in a series of lectures Mr. Mills is to deliver. Perhaps, before the course is finished, a program will be submitted, in terms of today, and in institutional aspects, to appeal to the country's imagination. Perhaps Mr. Mills has the genius to do it. If he has, then make way for another colleague, ye men of destiny.

FOR A CO-ORDINATED WELFARE PROGRAM.

The Missouri Legislature is offered a golden opportunity to apply some streamlining to the disorderly outlines of public welfare administration in the State.

It was not until 1916 that one controlling body was established for correctional institutions (in response, incidentally, to a demand initiated in the Legislature in 1888), and it was several years later before eleemosynary institutions were similarly combined.

As now constituted, the State machinery includes a relief commission existing by appointment of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and the Governor, and having only a collateral relation with county courts, which are now the co-ordinating local units for the State's welfare agencies. The State Eleemosynary Board has supervision of old-age assistance, pensions for the blind and aid for dependent children, as well as of mental and tubercular hospitals. Obvious defects of the present set-up are unnecessary expense and duplication; not so evident, but even more detrimental to the wards of State institutions, is the lack of a free flow of information and service between such institutions and the local agencies in home communities to which these wards are returned after their release. Further, it is manifest that the county courts cannot have—and should not be expected to have—the specialized experience of responsible county commissions reporting to a State commission.

Reorganization of individual bureaus has been brought into the foreground by the necessity for compliance with Federal social security requirements in order to obtain the benefit of appropriations, and the time seems appropriate for a general co-ordination of all welfare agencies in the State.

Support for such a program of State-wide administration has now crystallized around Senate Bill 125, which would provide for a State Social Security Commission and county commissions functioning under it. However, as now drawn, the bill includes only old-age assistance, pensions to the blind, aid for dependent children and general relief, and omits the eleemosynary institutions having care of mental and tubercular patients. Amendments proposed by the Missouri Association for Social Welfare would include these in the supervision of the general commission and would also provide a most imperative requirement—that of merit qualification for State and county directors.

Indorsement of Senate Bill 125 has been expressed by the president of the Board of Managers of State Eleemosynary Institutions, and by representatives of the State Children's Bureau, the Old-Age Assistance Bureau, the St. Louis Board of Children's Guardians and other welfare agencies.

Will the Legislature now act with speed and precision on a Statewide welfare program? Or will it initiate another 1888-1916 period of procrastination?

A LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL IN ILLINOIS?

Illinois State Senators Monroe of Collinsville, Smith of Chicago, Searcy of Springfield and Barr of Joliet—two Democrats and two Republicans—have joined in offering a bill to set up a legislative council in Illinois. We wish them success. What they propose for Illinois is a council of 10 members from each branch of the Legislature who will study State needs between, as well as during, sessions and make recommendations to the whole Legislature.

The idea is too good to be confined to Kansas and Michigan and the one or two other states which have adopted it. Successful operation in Illinois would do much to bring the plan to the attention of other states which now see no end of waste motion at every legislative session. While the three Senators who have joined with him in sponsoring the bill can be given credit for an enlightened legislative stand, it is T. V. Smith, the University of Chicago philosopher-lawmaker, who deserves particularly to be identified with the plan in Illinois. He introduced just one bill during the last session of the Legislature, and that was to establish a legislative council.

RUNNING THE BILBAO BLOCKADE.

Despite threats by the Spanish rebels and warnings by the British Government, seven British ships now have succeeded in running the blockade of strategically important Bilbao. Desperately needed food supplies have been taken to the besieged city, and an instructive object lesson in international law has been laid down for the enlightenment of all concerned.

A fundamental principle, in use among the nations since 1856, is that a blockade to be binding must be enforced. A mere proclamation, or "paper blockade," has no standing. This rule was invoked by Secretary Hull last August against the Madrid Government, when it issued notice that ports held by the rebels were under blockade. The United States, Mr. Hull responded, could not admit "the legality of any action on the part of the Spanish Government in declaring such ports closed unless that Government declares and maintains an effective blockade of such ports."

The British had been accused of cowardice when they warned merchantmen not to enter the harbors designated by Gen. Franco as blockaded. As it turned out, however, British war vessels fulfilled the historic tradition with respect to the three ships that ran the blockade last Friday. H. M. S. Hood and other craft conveyed the food ships as far as the three-mile limit, and warned off insurgent ships that tried to stop them. Within Spanish waters, the Bilbao ports batteries were effective, and the ships made shore safely.

Gen. Franco now is said to be planning a protest against Britain's attitude. Britain, however, has not given the rebels recognition as belligerents, and therefore the standing of their blockade efforts in British eyes is technically on a par with piracy. Food is not contraband under the non-intervention pact, and Britain has conveyed the blockade runners only on the high seas, which are, in theory at least, accessible to any nation. France will find it difficult to find grounds in international law for its protest.

GOOD PLACE FOR THE LIGHTNING TO STRIKE.

Coronation Crazy

Briton who has lived in this country sounds a few warnings to shiploads of Americans who will attend "gaudiest coronation in history"; they will pay for it, he says, citing estimate of $30,000,000 revenue from visitors at $2,270,000 spectacle; Sam Dodsworth may be at ease, for his manners will be as good as those of peers.

H. W. Seaman in the American Mercury.

"AMERICA," says a London newspaper headline, "is coronation crazy." There must be some truth in it. I receive a dozen letters a week from American friends, and seldom one without a mention of royalty. But I have been disturbed by the thought of the vast horde of Yankees who are coming over for the coronation.

It is not my purpose to state our guests away. On the contrary, let them all come, and the more the merrier, say I; and so, the hoteliers and the restaurateurs and the dips and the coney-catchers and the profiteers in seats and window spaces along the route of the coronation procession.

The show is going to cost us $464,000, but, says the Sunday Chronicle, our visitors are expected to spend $2,000,000, including $2,000,000 on drinking the King's health on the great day. It is regarded as a dirty trick on the part of the French to open their exhibition in Paris 11 days before our big show. Throughout Europe this summer, the watchword will be: "All that the traffic will bear."

It seems only yesterday that Sam Dodsworth was among us, wondering uneasily whether his hat, guaranteed by the Hub Hatters in Zenith to be the smartest in America, was quite the thing for Pecos-dilly.

Dodsworth need entertain no sartorial qualms even if he manages to crash the coronation itself; though this would be an unlikely feat, since the Abbey, with 18 inches of seat-space each person, including the fattest Duchess in all her paint, holds only 7500, at least two-thirds of whom will be behind pillars. If he turns up in a dress suit, he may be taken for nothing more outre than a Socialist M. P., the members of H. M. loyal Opposition having decided to shun knee breeches and similar gauds.

Nor will he have difficulty in making himself similarly comfortable at other functions of the social season; for if by chance he is invited to one of the royal garden parties, he can stroll on the Buckingham Palace lawn in a hired morning coat, gripped trousers and topper, secure in the knowledge that some of his fellow-guests have obtained theirs on the same terms.

If Dodsworth finds himself among the peers and peeresses for whom luncheon will be served on coronation day at a flat rate of 10s. 6d. a head, let him not fear that his Western ways will make him conspicuous. At this set-out, the fiasco of one of the jubilee luncheons may well be repeated: on that occasion, the catering arrangements slipped up, and hungry guests, reduced almost to eating their medals, fought like dogs. Having more than once seen the British nobility in the act of feeding, I have no hesitation in reassuring Dodsworth. At the Grand National recently, I saw the holder of one of our most revered titles, with a pork pie in one hand and a bottle in the other, taking alternate bites and swigs.

If Dodsworth has not already made hotel reservations in London and has not planked down the money for a seat at a window (the average price is £25, and there is a proposal to charge entertainment tax as well), let me invite him to spend coronation week in some such spot as the ancient cathedral city that I inhabit. We are going to have a whale of a do.

The Magistrates have been graciously disposed to grant us the boon of an extra hour for boozing, which means that the pubs will remain open until 11 p. m. "I don't think the privilege will be abused," said the Chief Constable, thereby confounding the disloyal devices of a couple of parsons and three lay preachers who had argued that such an extension of drinking hours would be the thin edge of a seditious wedge.

I hope that Dodsworth will not be seriously inconvenienced if one of our heat waves is in full blast. The first usually arrives in May, and the newspapers salute it in head lines: "70 in Shade." Britain Sweaters. Thousands Frosted! And there ought to be a guidebook for the visitor. It would warn him that if he uses a seat in a park, he must pay 2d. for it, and retain the ticket for inspection. It would tell him that the London tube trains stop running about midnight, and that the only means of wiffage after that is the costly taxicab.

Another thing—the visitor must not assume that his life is so much safer here than at home that he can afford to take chances. Our official homicide rate is low, perhaps because when an unknown corpse is hauled out of the river, it is assumed that the hole in the head was caused by accidental collision with a coal barge.

But nearly twice as many people are killed by motor cars daily in London as in New York. Still, Dodsworth, having missed the last tube train, can walk to his lodging with reasonable assurance that he will not be held up. But if he leaves his front door unlocked, as in Zenith, he will certainly lose his watch, and his pants with it.

In the dozen letters that I receive weekly from American friends, some are good enough to express concern for the future of royalty. I can reply only that it appears to be at least as safe as the Bank of England. A little while ago, it really seemed that the King-game was up; republicanism raised its gaily head—but only to duck down again when someone asked: "Who for President? A Roosevelt? A Harding? A Coolidge? A Winston Churchill?"

The snorts against royalty were to such little purpose that we are going to have the grandest, gaudiest coronation in history, costing twice as much as any coronation before it, and nearly as much as Sam Goldwyn has ever spent on an epic. The loud-est republican I know, the local atheist, who has never held with Kings, is chairman and treasurer of the association of shopkeepers who are going to decorate our main street. He says he knows of nothing in the republican creed that requires him to reject an excuse for a binge.

As I write, I learn that news real men are going to be allowed to film the coronation on condition that they submit their pictures to the Archbishop of Canterbury before the public gets a slant at them. Dodsworth may ask, "Does the Archbishop of Canterbury run this country?"

The answer is that at times, lately, it has looked bloody nearly like it.

Economic History

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

AT ATLANTA the other day, one Oscar Johnston of Mississippi, described as a cotton expert, said in a speech to the Atlanta Cotton Association:

"We can regain foreign markets if we are prepared to reduce our tariff and buy from those markets sufficient goods to provide those countries with adequate dollar exchange."

The implications of this short paragraph constitute a large part of the economic history of the United States. John C. Calhoun made it over and over again in Congress, and it has been made by others in every year since Calhoun's time.

However, it wasn't effective in the past because it had one fatal weakness. In those days, foreign countries didn't need dollar exchange. They were willing to permit their country, taking in exchange certificates of ownership of our railroads, telegraphs, factories, power developments and transmission lines and other properties.

The time came, though, when Europe found itself in desperate need of guns, shells and explosives. We supplied them in calculable quantities and got back ownership of American property; then we came more, and wound up with certificates of ownership of a large part of Europe. That is to say, we changed from a debtor into a creditor nation.

Europe now needs dollar exchange and there is no way to get it except by selling goods to us. But she can't do much of that on account of the tariff; therefore she can't buy much of our goods. So Mr. Johnston's argument suddenly gains strength.

FOOD FOR FIGHTERS.

From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.
AT LAST one gleam of common sense appears in Nazi policy, even if it is forced upon Germany by Nazi nuttiness. Germany has ordered bakers to put 7 per cent of cornmeal in every loaf of bread, and the Teutons are assured that even 10 per cent of cornmeal will not hurt the bread.

They might make it 100 per cent and get an even better bread. We used to think so in the South when there were still coons who could make hockeas and corn pone—and make them right.

We are not interested in giving aid to the German General Staff, but if they will consult Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester, Minn., he may tell them that corn pone, black-eyed peas and sorghum molasses are an ideal ration for fighting men. We heard Dr. Charles say that Stonewall Jackson's "foot cavalry" in the valley of Virginia, fed on that ration, had just the right grub for killing and fighting.

SMOKE NUISANCE EXODUS.

From the Los Angeles (La.) Tribune.

ST. LOUIS is experiencing an exodus, not of taxpayers, but of taxable real estate improvements. Large and costly houses, hotels, theaters and cafe buildings are being razed. Occupants of the demolished residences are moving to suburban areas and the city is losing revenue.

It has been pointed out at the Missouri metropolis that living costs in the outlying districts are not enough lower than in the city itself to compensate the movers, but they enjoy one advantage in their new homes: they have no smoke nuisance.

They haven't cut expenses, but they have escaped the downtown smoke nuisance. And cost or no cost, they won't move back until that blight hangs over their roofs.

55 YEARS IN ST. LOUIS FOR SALVATION ARMY

First Meeting Held on Ice in River, Speaker Recalls at Program.

Fifty-five years ago, the Salvation Army held its first St. Louis meeting on the ice of the Mississippi River, its use of the streets having been forbidden by city officials. Yesterday, it observed the anniversary of its organization with a program at the Municipal Auditorium including addresses by city officials and religious leaders and heard a former Mayor as a member of a trio which sang one of its favorite songs, "Sunshine on the Hills."

It was Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel who referred to the Salvation Army's early difficulties which drove Commissioner Scott Ralston to the wind-swept ice of the river for its first meeting in 1882. City officials continue to discriminate in permitting the use of public facilities, Rabbi Isserman added, with obvious reference to the refusal to permit a showing in the Auditorium Friday night of the anti-Nazi motion picture, "Der Kampf."

After talks by President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen and Dean Sidney E. Sweet of Christ Church Cathedral, Forrest C. Donnell, chairman of the St. Louis Advisory Board, introduced Gen. Edward J. Higgins, former international commander of the Salvation Army, who, with Mrs. Higgins, was a guest of honor.

Gen. Higgins observed that in the year of the establishment of the St. Louis organization there were but 500 workers in three nations, while today 26,000 are active in 90 countries. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian Church and the benediction was said by the Rev. Loren M. Edwards of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

The musical program included numbers by the United Chorus, Midland Divisional Band, the Second Presbyterian Church Choir and the trio composed of former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, treasurer of the St. Louis Salvation Army Advisory Board; Phil Brooks, vice chairman of the board, and Lieutenant-Colonel Victor Lundgren, divisional commander.

Jones said he would return to his post of financial adviser to the commissioner. He is a former Texas member of the Ohio State University faculty and previously served as Insular Auditor.

McNutt, accompanied by his wife and daughter, received a warm welcome. The Welcoming Committee was headed by Jones and Jorge B. Vargas, secretary to President Manuel Quezon.

BISHOP W. F. McDOWELL DIES IN WASHINGTON

M. E. Church Prelate, 79 Succumbs to Heart Attack After Lecture Tour.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Bishop William Fraser McDowell, for many years a prominent figure in the Methodist Episcopal Church, died here today. He was 79 years old. He suffered a heart attack soon after returning to his home from Morganton, N. C., where he had been on a lecture tour.

McDowell was bishop in charge of the Washington area from 1916 to 1932. Since then he has been chairman of the committee on unification of the Methodist Church, formed to bring about unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Protestant Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

As president of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of his church, for years, Bishop McDowell had an outstanding part in obtaining national prohibition.

Associates called the Bishop the "supreme preacher of the Methodist denomination." He was born Feb. 4, 1858, at Millersburg, O., and was ordained in 1882. He held various pastorates in Ohio before becoming chancellor of Denver University, in which post he served from 1890 to 1899. He was corresponding secretary of the board of education of his church, 1899-1904, and later its president. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Herman Anker, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, officiating. Philip Torchio of Bronxville, N. Y., was best man, and the other usher was Lindsay Dudley of Milwaukee. The bride's two cousins, John and Allen Perry Lovejoy III, and Victor C. The bride spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Cochran the latter part of last month. A program of wedding music, played by the Eber Arthur Trio preceded the ceremony, which was performed in the bay window of the drawing room that had been converted into a flower of ferns and yellow and blue spring flowers with ivory tapers in bronze holders. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore her mother's wedding gown, a quaint model fashioned with princely lace over satin and a long sweeping train. Her veil of ivory tulle was fastened to a halo cap with clusters of orange blossoms on either side. The bride's bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

SOMETIMES when you git to thinkin' of the world as a whole, she looks like a pretty cold, tough proposition, but when you take the people individually you'll find that they're a pretty sympathetic lot and willin' to help ya. Uncle Slug's mother-in-law came to spend the week-end with 'em one spring and late the following fall, she said one day that she'll jest have 'a tear herself away. Uncle Slug called a cab and they started for the depot. Uncle Slug noticed that the cab driver was a tough, hard-lookin' man and he was jest pokin' along, but when Uncle Slug tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Would ya mind drivin' a little faster. I want my mother-in-law to catch that train." The cab driver stepped on the gas and said, "Brother, I'll drive jest as though she was my own mother-in-law!" (Copyright, 1937.)

Explanation of Orders Should Be Given Child To Demand Obedience Often Fails and Leads to Further Complications.

By Angelo Patri

"GO AHEAD, Foster, and take the stairs three."

Foster, head man on the line, nodded, gave the signal to his line and marched the children down the hall, turned right and took stair number two.

The teacher, standing by to watch the dismissal, shouted sharply, "Class Seven, Halt." The marching line stopped. "Take stair three, John."

The boy at the head of the remaining group turned left and led his followers down stair three. The teacher hurried to stair two, where the first part of the line was struggling to pass a class on its way up the same stairs.

"Single file to next landing, boys," said he cheerfully. "Class Seven stand where you are, single file."

When confusion was ended, the teacher said, "You were to take stair three, Foster. How did it come you took two?"

"It was just ahead of me, so I took it. I didn't know why I shouldn't. I thought maybe you hadn't thought of it. We usually go down two."

"Yes, but the yard schedule was changed today. That is why I told you to take three. Go ahead."

Of course, the teacher could have stormed instead of explaining. He could have demanded in loud and outraged tones why his orders had not been obeyed. He behaved with teacherly intelligence. He took for granted that the leader had made a mistake, set him right, showed him that his orders had reason behind them and proved his right to be obeyed.

The leader felt ashamed of his plight and instead of resenting the teacher's orders and attitude, felt a new respect for them. The experience taught him something, strengthened the teacher's authority, made class spirit finer.

SOME teachers and parents fail to use such opportunities to strengthen their relations with the children. Their self-importance gets in the way. "I told you what to do," is their response to such a mistake, and all their emphasis is on the "I." That makes a deal of trouble.

Any attitude that expresses selfishness, authority, or superiority, force for the feeling of power over another, is bound to bring out resistance. What is needed is cooperation. Anything else is waste.

How much of such waste there is in homes and schools we can only guess at from the casual experiences that come to us who have to do with children. Sometimes a school stops work because of a feud between a teacher and a family whose children attend the school. Whole communities have been stirred into excitement and enmity because someone felt his authority slighted, or his pride hurt. The elders outside the children in childhood.

Take all such happenings impersonally. Don't let feeling mix the brew of anger that will bring healthy helpful association to an end. Call on your sense of humor. See past the mistake to the child's point of view. Start where he stands and go along with him in spirit and there will be no such battles.

Angelo Patri has prepared a special booklet (No. 301) entitled, "Obedience," in which he tells parents how to cope with the difficult problems of disobedience. Send for it, enclosing 10 cents. Address your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, The Bell Library, care of this newspaper, 247 West Forty-third street, New York, N. Y.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

COULD you tell me, please, where I can obtain instruction in learning how to operate a private switchboard? I know of some school offering such instruction. I should be very glad to know the name.

THE telephone company at one time had such classes, but they were discontinued for while. You might call up and ask if they have been organized again. I think some small hotel or small establishment might permit you to learn, if you would offer services for that or for other kind of work or to pay them something.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

ON what dates did the following days fall:

July 30, 1899; November 2, 1907; February 27, 1909; March 28, 1911.

THE first date came on Sunday; second, Saturday; third, Saturday; fourth, Sunday.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

WHEN you awakened this morning did you feel as though you had the weight of the world on your shoulders? Perhaps it wasn't the weight of the world but only the slump of the shoulders themselves. Here is something which will make that feeling slide off like water on a duck's back.

Shoulder exercise: Raise both arms forward shoulder height and shoulder width apart. Bring the arm backward, still shoulder height and at the same time lower head backward. Bring arms forward again and raise the head. Continue flinging arms sideward and lowering head, and raising head as arms come forward. As the arms fling backward, the palms of the hands face toward the back.

What is your figure molding problem? If you want your questions answered directly, send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. All correspondence will be strictly confidential. Address your letters to Josephine Lowman, care of St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

As NOEL COWARD SEES HIMSELF

Playwright-Actor, After Capricious Childhood and Astounding Theater Career, Feels at 37 He Has "Fulfilled His Destiny."

By VIRGINIA IRWIN

enough to be able to command big ones."

To kill time, the somewhat discouraged white hope of the theater allowed himself to be hired as a pair of rigo by Eliza Maxwell and Dorothy Fellows-Gordon and escorted those two ladies to Venice for a fortnight. He then returned to London for the production of his play "The Young Idea," and also started writing his revue "London Calling," and when that had run through several editions, once more sailed for New York. But New York was still not ready to grovel in the dust before his genius and real success did not come until 1925 when his play "The Vortex" took London by the ears and Mr. Coward was established as a celebrity with the unquestioned right to wear colored turtle-necked jerseys, and pass his opinion upon such subjects as whether modern girls make good mothers.

Speaking of his unquestioned success, Noel Coward writes, "I opened

seats and sold them, sometimes on the sidewalk outside the theater, for as much as 30 and 25 dollars a pair. It was obviously a violent and glittering success, and I became extremely happy, the talk of the town. I was photographed and caricatured and interviewed and published with even more thoroughness than in London. I was the guest of honor in all directions and made brief speeches at immense ladies' luncheons. I was invited to recite week-ends in large houses on Long Island, but these I had to give up very soon, as they were far too strenuous, and I was too tired after such clamorous relaxation to be able to give a good performance on Monday evenings."

Not so generously received were two other of the young genius' plays, "Easy Virtue" and "Hay Fever," both given to New York on the same trip, but with the feeling that America had at last acquired enough sense to accept him for his worth, and with a second-hand Rolls-Royce, our hero came more returned to London to treat English playgoers to his experiment in Ruritanian romanticism, "The Queen Was in the Parlor," and a thorough-going fizzle entitled "The Rat Trap."

After the London fiasco of "The Rat Trap," the irrepressible Mr. Coward descended again upon New York with a piece titled "This Was a Man," during the performance of which the audience left almost in a body at the end of the second act and at the end of the run of the play playwright-performer Coward departed for Honolulu to indulge in theatrically spectacular nervous breakdown.

After two moderately successful plays, "The Marquise" and "Henceforth," had folded in London, the "daring" at the London theater had the distressing experience of authoring what he admits as "probably the bloodiest failure in the history of the English Theater." Boed off the stage during the first night of "Sirocco," Mr. Coward was subjected to the further indignity of being spat upon when he left the theater.

"In everyone I chanced to look at, daily or weekly," he writes, "I was confronted by either unpleasantly veiled or direct allusions to my recent debacle. I should, of course, far from being upset, have congratulated myself on the stringy persistence of my new values; no other dramatist that I could remember, with the exception of Bernard Shaw, having been the object of such a sustained attack for many years. However, I was upset, exceedingly upset. It seemed strange that the various editors should permit such redundant flogging of a dead donkey, unless perhaps they had a suspicion that, after all, the donkey might not be quite dead, and wished to make sure. At all events, I formed a violent little resolution then and there that in the future, however many triumphs I might achieve, I would never again, in any circumstances, give an interview to the London press."

"Never again should their readers be gratified by my opinion of 'The Modern Girl,' Hensford, my views on birth control, television, long skirts, D. H. Lawrence, free love and bicycling waitresses should be locked in my own bosom, and, strange as it may seem, good resolutions as a rule being so frequently trodden into the dust by the

my arms a little too wide to everything that came, and enjoyed it. Later on, just a little while later, three years to be exact, circumstances showed me that my acceptance had been a thought too credulous. In the next months with two of his plays, "Fallen Angels" and "The Rat Trap," and his revue, "On With the Dance," all running at once, Jean Nathan, the period in New York was spent accepting the charity of friends, loafing on a bench in Battery Park and trying to scrape together enough cash to finance the trip back home to more appreciative London.

The year 1922 began for me in a walter of financial embarrassment," Coward admits. "In former days, of course, I could probably have gone out on tour or procured a small job in London, but now having played two or three leading parts, and actually appeared in my own play in the West End, I was in the awkward situation of being too well-known to be able to accept little jobs, and not well-known

To kill time, the somewhat discouraged white hope of the theater allowed himself to be hired as a pair of rigo by Eliza Maxwell and Dorothy Fellows-Gordon and escorted those two ladies to Venice for a fortnight. He then returned to London for the production of his play "The Young Idea," and also started writing his revue "London Calling," and when that had run through several editions, once more sailed for New York. But New York was still not ready to grovel in the dust before his genius and real success did not come until 1925 when his play "The Vortex" took London by the ears and Mr. Coward was established as a celebrity with the unquestioned right to wear colored turtle-necked jerseys, and pass his opinion upon such subjects as whether modern girls make good mothers.

seats and sold them, sometimes on the sidewalk outside the theater, for as much as 30 and 25 dollars a pair. It was obviously a violent and glittering success, and I became extremely happy, the talk of the town. I was photographed and caricatured and interviewed and published with even more thoroughness than in London. I was the guest of honor in all directions and made brief speeches at immense ladies' luncheons. I was invited to recite week-ends in large houses on Long Island, but these I had to give up very soon, as they were far too strenuous, and I was too tired after such clamorous relaxation to be able to give a good performance on Monday evenings."

Not so generously received were two other of the young genius' plays, "Easy Virtue" and "Hay Fever," both given to New York on the same trip, but with the feeling that America had at last acquired enough sense to accept him for his worth, and with a second-hand Rolls-Royce, our hero came more returned to London to treat English playgoers to his experiment in Ruritanian romanticism, "The Queen Was in the Parlor," and a thorough-going fizzle entitled "The Rat Trap."

After the London fiasco of "The Rat Trap," the irrepressible Mr. Coward descended again upon New York with a piece titled "This Was a Man," during the performance of which the audience left almost in a body at the end of the second act and at the end of the run of the play playwright-performer Coward departed for Honolulu to indulge in theatrically spectacular nervous breakdown.

After two moderately successful plays, "The Marquise" and "Henceforth," had folded in London, the "daring" at the London theater had the distressing experience of authoring what he admits as "probably the bloodiest failure in the history of the English Theater." Boed off the stage during the first night of "Sirocco," Mr. Coward was subjected to the further indignity of being spat upon when he left the theater.

"In everyone I chanced to look at, daily or weekly," he writes, "I was confronted by either unpleasantly veiled or direct allusions to my recent debacle. I should, of course, far from being upset, have congratulated myself on the stringy persistence of my new values; no other dramatist that I could remember, with the exception of Bernard Shaw, having been the object of such a sustained attack for many years. However, I was upset, exceedingly upset. It seemed strange that the various editors should permit such redundant flogging of a dead donkey, unless perhaps they had a suspicion that, after all, the donkey might not be quite dead, and wished to make sure. At all events, I formed a violent little resolution then and there that in the future, however many triumphs I might achieve, I would never again, in any circumstances, give an interview to the London press."

"Never again should their readers be gratified by my opinion of 'The Modern Girl,' Hensford, my views on birth control, television, long skirts, D. H. Lawrence, free love and bicycling waitresses should be locked in my own bosom, and, strange as it may seem, good resolutions as a rule being so frequently trodden into the dust by the

How Bleeding Is Prevented In Operations

Surgeon Uses Forceps to Check Flow—Blood Vessel Later Is Tied.

By Dr. M. G. Seelig

FOR the past number of years, I have kept mental tab on the questions that are asked me most frequently by inquiring acquaintances. The one that heads the list runs something like this: "Doctor, when the surgeon operates upon a patient, just how does he stop the bleeding that occurs in the course of the operation?"

Just because the procedure is so very simple, laymen experience more or less difficulty in grasping the idea. They know that the barber's stick of alum stops bleeding from insignificant cuts, that pressure on a fresh wound will frequently check hemorrhage, and that even a Boy Scout can apply a tourniquet to check bleeding. But what they want to know is what does the surgeon do when he gets into action.

Second only to a knife, the instrument most frequently used by a surgeon is the forceps or clamp. These instruments range in size from tiny things, so small that they are called mosquito forceps, to those that have almost the proportions of blacksmith tools. The smaller sizes are known as artery forceps and they play the leading role in checking hemorrhage.

Bleeding from the smallest sized blood vessels usually stops of its own accord. It is only when the larger ones are severed that something has to be done about it. And what is done is just this: The surgeon, seeing the blood streaming out of the open or cut end of the blood vessel, applies his forceps at this point, pinching the cut end of the vessel shut. The forceps are so made that when they are closed they stay closed until the surgeon desires to release them. Sometimes the mere crushing of the blood vessel with the forceps serves to check bleeding permanently; but we dare not trust that this will happen, so we have to provide against the hemorrhage starting again after the forceps is removed. We secure this provision by tying off the bit of tissue held in the bite of the forceps before removing it. This process of tying off is called ligating, and the material with which the tying is done is called a ligature.

The material most commonly used as a ligature is catgut—which, by the way, is obtained from the guts not of cats, but of sheep. Silk thread is also frequently used, and in addition to these two, we also use cotton and linen thread, and the tendons (or leaders) of the kangaroo, because these kangaroos have long tendons that other animals, and therefore, furnish longer ligatures. All these various materials are carefully cleaned and sterilized before they are used.

After the ligature has been snugly tied around the tissue held by the clamp, this instrument is removed and then the ligature is cut so short that one can see only the knot and its two tiny projecting ends. The tissues of the body tolerate these short cropped ties very well. Catgut and kangaroo tendon ligatures remain in place long enough to assure permanent closure of the bleeding vessel, and are then slowly absorbed by the body, until they disappear. Silk, cotton and linen ligatures remain imbedded permanently. They have been carefully sterilized and properly applied, the body tolerates them well. The body also provides an accessory circulation to nourish those tissues previously fed by the cut artery.

MISPLACED REPORT NO.

OF ALL the efficiency men who swarm in and out of Federal buildings in Washington (stopping only long enough to exchange greetings and the Daily Racing Form), none is more restless and itchy than Haverack E. Dunkle of the Bureau of Inter-Bureau Communications. In a report, which he has inadvertently misplaced but hopes to run across when he gets time to clear off his desk, Dunkle believes he estimated that franked mail has increased 300 per cent during the last six years. "This increase," says Dunkle with a shrug and a spontaneous little tap dance, "represents hand-outs, or publicity bluffs, from various bureaus. Recent tests indicate that these hand-outs are tossed aside, unread, by correspondents and newspaper editors. Consequently, I would like to suggest that Congress pass a law requiring that Government hand-outs hereafter be supplied free to soap manufacturers to be used as wrappers."

IT'S DONE WITH MIRRORS. "George VI, attending the British Industries Fair, showed that he intends to be a popular monarch. He called to the photographers: 'Come along, boys! Take another picture!'"—London Dispatch.

Make the King look human. Then the nation's blokes will purr with pride and vast content. "The King is just like folks!"

Show him petting puppies. Show him with a "rose." Snap him patting heads of "tiny tots," of course.

Take another picture, boys! Hear the shutters click! Photographs of royalty looking span and epic.

Make a mighty nation swell its chest with joy. "Look! George the Sixth! Hi say! 'E's a proper boy!'"

FAVORITE WIFE

Bellane Insists on Thinking of Doris in Terms of an Earlier Generation—He Is Pleased at Hearing From Helen.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

DORIS was still in bed when Bellane phoned her the next morning. It was lovely of him to remember to ring her, though it was a little later than he said it would be. He had said last night that he would call her at a quarter to nine, which was the hour at which she had told him that she would first open her eyes. He was flustered, guiltily sorry for being late, and said so, while the young secretary watched him from the background, a faint smile on his inscrutable mouth.

Like all men in such situations, especially men of a certain age, when dealing with what must be to them the enigma of the modern girl, he was deeply thrilled at his mind's picture of her lying there in what he had been accustomed to think of as the intimacy of a woman's bedroom.

In his age—not so long ago either—lingerie was lingerie, and thrilling to the male eye; intimacy was intimacy; privilege was privilege; and to talk to Doris just now under these circumstances savored of a very dear privilege indeed.

Worldly as he was, he had yet not accustomed himself to this modern girl. Doris was the first of her class and kind at whose mercy he had put himself, for he was chary of them.

And so, in the depths of this really profound ignorance at which none of his contemporaries would have guessed, he did not know, and would have been unwilling to know, that Doris was extending him no privilege at the moment.

He did not know, because he had not wished to know, that any casual boy enjoying her friendship, or even merely her acquaintance, had he driven up to the Randel house just now in the sort of car that youth affected, might have dashed unconcernedly through that attractive hall, up the stairs, banged on Doris' door, called out: "Oh, old thing, it's me! Can I see you for a second?" and have been told to come in.

For another thing that he did not wish to know was that if same gay, reckless, casual young Tom, Dick or Harry had called her up at dawn, for a joy ride in the sky, she would have been up and away hours ago, untired. He preferred to think of her as easily tired. And he said: "I expect you are tired, dear. You must take care of yourself, you know."

And she laughed and said: "Oh, and he replied to that with a ring of authority: 'I shall make you.'"

Doris began to talk freshly and volubly, as if there were all morning at their disposal. She had a thousand things to do.

She and her mother were going together to buy clothes now that the wedding was so near. Her mother though she was being rushed off her feet. "That's the SYNOPSIS. Doris Randel, lovely young girl, became engaged to James Bellane, a middle-aged man of means. They were dining in a very superior restaurant when he asked her to marry him and gave her an emerald engagement ring. Doris, wearing a borrowed table cape, thought that now the cape would be taken care of. Then she saw, sitting at another table, Terry Waters, a handsome young man with whom she had been in love, and Helen Forrest, who had once been in love with Bellane. Doris was jealous because Terry seemed to be enjoying the company of this good-looking, older woman. Terry was telling Helen how he had met Doris and fallen in love with her. He wanted to know what kind of man Bellane was.

middle-aged point of view, isn't it, darling?"

She had been thinking again of the honeymoon plans they discussed last night going home. Should they meet him for luncheon?

Here Bellane had to hesitate, while again the young secretary smiled cynically in the background; for this would mean calling off another luncheon engagement with a man in the city.

It meant postponing rather undeniably a business talk. It even threatened—considering that two joyous trousseau-buying, leisurely luncheon women were in question—his absence from a conference that afternoon, at which, by all the canons of business law and order, he should be present.

But when he answered, his hesitation had been swept away by urgent desire to see Doris again, and his voice was a quaver, as he still chose his words considerably, and the young secretary in the background listened with that cynical smile.

Doris ran on: Yes? That would be very nice. They would meet him at the Ritz. He wouldn't be in a hurry, would he? Because she wondered if he could come with her to the jeweler's to help her choose a setting for some of her mother's stones, which she was to have on her wedding day.

Then they wanted him to dine quietly—at least, the parents said "just quietly," but she and he could slip away and dance, couldn't they? "Yes, dear," said Bellane. "Yes, dear," and then she began radiantly to annex tomorrow.

Oh, well, it wasn't every day that a man like himself planned getting married; planned the end of all the amorous episodes; all the self-seeking and self-satisfying adventures. It wasn't every day that a fiancé, an epicure of life like himself, changed the whole menu for the banquet.

Today's business must just go hang if it must be so. But then, as he hung up, and settled down in his chair, still smiling, although his left hand went automatically to the already opened pile of correspondence on his desk, the young secretary was beside him, insistent.

She would be a charming confidante for a young bride; also, it was rather a good thing—especially in his case when a man could introduce satisfactory women friends to his adored girl.

Very certainly, she should be part of his plan for Doris, the young wife.

His secretary came in noiselessly with his letter to sign. Just as his male secretary had done early in the morning, she looked at him very considerably while he sat dashing his signature with unusual impatience at the foot of each sheet.

She thought him magnificent, just as most women did, but being his secretary through years of trial and error, she also knew him better than most women.

Of course, she was familiar with the rumors that had been flying about the office; and one day recently, a svelte, smart girl, gay and arrogant—presumptuous, so the secretary thought—had drifted in and said, as if the whole of this ordered, quiet speaking, swift working world of Bellane's creation belonged to her: "Could I see Mr. Bellane? Say Miss Randel, please."

And when she had been told that he was in conference, she had protested: "Yes, but please tell him that I am here," and directly he was told she was here, although in conference, Bellane had excused himself, had leapt up like an eager boy, and taken her into his private room.

The door was open giving an impression of haste, but they had not hurried. They stayed there, laughing and talking, while business men waited, and after all she had only come to ask him something about Ranelagh on Sunday.

Looking up at her, Bellane said suddenly, with that smile that had made many women love him: "Miss Rogers, I am engaged to be married."

She had to smile too, and say: "I'm married every day, Mr. Bellane. Of course, it is not exactly a surprise to me."

As he left the office, swinging off like a boy glad to be free of imprisoning doors, Bellane reflected that it was all a miracle to himself. It was a miracle, given that he had invested his whole life, radiant beyond the understanding of other people.

World Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

THE repeal of the Missouri Compromise, in 1854, injected the slavery issue afresh into American politics. Henry Clay meant to put the issue off, put it to sleep, but the plan failed.

When the news of the repeal reached Lincoln he was out on the Eighth Circuit, trying cases at law. He saw what it meant, and re-entered public life, to take part in the great debate.

Judge Davis, who slept in the same room, tells how Lincoln started to go to bed, but failed. He took off his coat and sat on the side of the bed, one shoe off, one shoe on, thinking.

Next morning, in the grey dawn, Davis saw him still sitting in exactly the same attitude, one shoe off, one shoe on. He looked like a stone image; he had been thinking all night long.

When Davis stirred, Lincoln said: "Judge, a house divided against itself cannot stand; this nation cannot exist half slave and half free; it must be all one thing or all the other."

How strange to hear the Dictator of Italy saying the same thing today, in almost the same way. In a recent speech he said, "It is we or it; it cannot be both." And he is right.

We, the dictators, or they, the democracies, is what he meant. The world must be all one thing or all the other; it cannot be both. There is no common ground of compromise, or peace.

There it is, plain and flat, despotism or democracy. The world is divided against itself, torn asunder, cut in two.

What was the sensation felt by Ed Small, film paymaster, when, after shelling $150,000 to Edward Arnold for a few weeks' toil, the actor recalled that Small had once chased him out of his office as unworthy of glensmama?

Why doesn't Dorothy Parker beg her misguided pals of the press not to print her mildest sallies? She doesn't intend them to be rib tickling, and is probably as irked by their printing as most of us. It's unjust to blame her for a columnist's lame wit.

What do the Reds wish would happen to the London Times for saying that the late Jack Reed, their idol, wasn't much of an author and not even a very good revolutionary? The London paper hinted
